LEUBRIES

We have thousands of things opened on display and as many packed in cases longing to be bought. There are dolls, and dolls, and dolls, that talk, and keep quiet, and lie down, and stand upon their feet, and have to be held up all the time, and can sit down like little ladies, and tumble about in the most alarming manner, and are dressed to death, and haven't a rag on their backs, and musn't be played with, and can stand being knocked about, and are lovely to look at, and horrible to contemplate, and are made of rags, and china, and composition, and wax, and India rubber, and goodness only knows what; and rings for their fingers, and bells on their toes, and there are other kinds of dolls, too.

PLUNGER WALTON.

He Will Keep Philadelphia Clean for $500,000 a Year.

Unearthing Scandals at Castle Garden--To-Day's Editorial Comments of the New York Press.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The following is a synopsis of the editorial comments of the New York press to-day: The Tribune says: "Prof. Sargent's paper on 'Forest Fires,' read yesterday at Northampton, will answer as well for the latitude of New York as for that of New England. There is many an acre in the Middle States where timber could be more profitably grown than any other crop. But the prospective value of forest property is only appreciated by the few, and the danger to such property for lawlessness and carelessness discourages far-seeing investers. Legislation, State and national, is greatly needed, but knowledge is needed more and it is needed now. As soon as the worth of our wood lands is understood, laws for their protection and the enforcement of these laws will follow soon. For this reason competent treatment of forest questions is a genuine public service."

PLUNGER WALTON.

The Sun says: "Mr. Plunger Walton has offered to keep the streets of Philadelphia clean for five years for $500,000 a year. The Plunger should not let his ambition overleap itself. The streets of New York ought to obsorb all his energy for some time. They are far from being in perfect condition yet."

AN UGLY SCANDAL.

The World says: "The committee engaged in investigating the Emigration Commissioners yesterday unearthed an ugly-looking scandal of a kind that can not be very well dismissed, but it did not shed much light on the main question, where the money goes which is contributed to the Emmigration Commission by the State and by the emigrants. Mr. Barney Bigley was engaged at a funeral, and consequently the committee could not ascertain what are the profits of being a stalwart politician to Barney, who certainly could not earn five dollars a day in any lawful business in which he was exposed to competition. The Committee did learn something, however, about the politicians who kept the restaurant in Castle Garden, although those cautious persons 'keep no books.' It appears, however, that the profit on bread is 20 per cent, on sausages 100 per cent, on cigars 85 per cent, on beer 130 per cent. Feeding 500,000 immigrants a year, presuming each is only fed one day at these rates, makes it very pleasant for Nugent & Murray."

VETOING APPROPRIATIONS.

The Herald says: Senator Morgan, of Alabama, has introduced a joint resolution providing for an amendment to the Constitution empowering the President to veto any item in an appropriation bill while giving his sanction to the remainder. The Constitution of this State contains a provision of this kind and its operation has been found exceedingly effective. If the supreme Federal law vested a like power in the Executive we would have one more check on jobbery and we can not have too many of them. It is to be regretted that so wholesale a measure as Mr. Morgan proposes can not be enacted into a law except through the slow and cumberous machinery of an amendment to the Constitution, but that is the only way in which it can be accomplished at all. Congress should at once provide for the submission of the amendment to the State Legislatures."

MR. PENDLETON'S ZEAL.

The Times says: "There appears to be some doubt in Washington circles as to the sincerity of the zeal of Mr. Pendleton for the reform bill which bears his name, but the Senator himself says that he is as much in earnest about it as ever, and means to call it up and press it as soon as he can. When he does so, it is Mr. Warner Miller's declared intention to offer an amendment prohibiting removals, except for cause. If Mr. Miller will secure the passage of Mr. Pendleton's bill substantially in its present form, with a general abolition of a fixed term of office of the subordinates in the service, he may be quite at rest in regard to removals. Not even the most ardent Democratic administration will abuse the right of removal at discretion if the vacancies are to be filled by the methods provided in the Pendleton bill. The root of the whole reform is in appointments made for fitness proved by competition. These once secured, all else will inevitably follow."

REFUNDING THE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Movement to Get Back Money Subscribed to the Centennial.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—A special to the World says: There is a movement on foot on the part of the directors of the Centennial Exposition to memorialize Congress to make an appropriation for refunding to the subscribers to the exposition the amount of their subscriptions, which were in the neighborhood of $6,500,000. The memorialists will take the ground that the country reaped sufficient benefit commercially and otherwise from the exposition to justify the subscribers in asking reimbursement. It is possible also that the project of a world's fair in 1889 may assume definite shape this winter. The fair is designed to celebrate the inauguration of Washington and the establishment of constitutional government. The intention of its organizers is to make it similar in character to the exposition of 1876, and probably New York will be selected as the site.

A Servant's Suicide.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—A Times special from Trenton, N. J., says: This morning a domestic named Martha Blurton, in the employ of Thomas J. McPherson, was found dead upon the floor of her bed-room. A bottle of oil of tansy was found, and the odor from the mouth of the dead woman confirmed the suspicions that she had taken a quantity of the drug. It was ascertained that the oil had been purchased at Woodward's drug store in Chambersburg by a young man named George Beatty, who was keeping company with the woman. The woman was about 35 years old.

The Father of Cheap Postage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—James W. Hale, one of the oldest men known in Wall street, has been appointed School Trustee of the Second Ward. Though past seventy, Mr. Hale is as vigorous as the majority of men at fifty years. He has been forty-five years in Wall street. He said: "I am the father of cheap postage and the father of the express business. Do you know that I have been arrested more than any other living man? I have been arrested just 420 times for nominally violating the law, but I did not violate any law. Daniel Webster said to me one day: 'Mr. Hale, you will be in the Penitentiary before many days.' 'No, Mr. Webster,' I replied, 'there is no law that can put me in the Penitentiary.' I was charged with carrying letters or pay."

A Chinese Inspector.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—H. Ballou Morse, representing the Chinese Customs Service, was a visitor at the Custom-house yesterday. He comes to this city representing the Chinese Government, with a special view of inspecting the warehouse system in vogue here.

"COLORED CHAMPIONS."

A Boxing Match at Harry Hill's Ends in a Row.

Joe Coburn Released From Sing Sing After Six Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—Over 200 men visited Harry Hill's yesterday to witness the glove contest between "two colored champions," for a gold medal valued at $100 and the American championship. Chas. H. Hadley, of Bridgeport, and Morris Grant, of New York, were the only men who put in an appearance to box for the championship. Both men had won the medal twice. After the usual preliminaries Hill called two policemen from the rear of the house, saying that he hoped their assistance would not be necessary to maintain order, but he feared trouble. When time was called Grant led off by a slight blow on Hadley's chest but was countered by Hadley with such effect that

MORRIS STAGGERED.

Seeing his advantage, Hadley followed him up with a terrific left-hand blow, which knocked Grant off his feet. When the three minutes were up the men were taken to their corners, and the spectators began to behave in a most boisterous manner. When time was called Grant appeared to be weak. Hadley forced the fighting and again knocked Grant off his feet. He was carried away unconscious, and Hill gave the medal to Hadley. Grant's second applied an epithet to Hadley which the latter resented by

KNOCKING HIM OFF THE STAGE.

The police then rushed upon the stage in time to catch Cooley, who was about to resent the blow. Cooley was seized by one of the officers, who held him by the throat against a post while Hadley was borne off by his friends.

COBURN AT LIBERTY.

Joe Coburn, the pugilist, was yesterday discharged form Sing Sing prison, having been pardoned by Gov. Cornell. He was sentenced in March, 1877, to ten years' imprisonment for an assault with intent to kill. He spent the first part of his sentence in Auburn prison, but about two years ago was brought back to Sing Sing. By his uniformly good conduct his term was reduced by commutation to six and a half years. Warden Brush says: "He was a perfect convict, a faithful worker and we hate to lose him." Coburn was congratulated by many of his old friends last evening in a West Side sporting establishment, upon his return to this city. His imprisonment of nearly six years has not whitened his hair or added lines of care to his large countenance. He is much heavier than when taken from New York to Sing Sing. He wore a shining silk hat, dark clothing and handsome black overcoat. He smoked and when invited to drink called for plain soda water. He was as impulsive and merry as in years ago upon festive occasions, but seemed inclined to quiet and repose. Coburn says he could scarcely realize the fact that he was again a free man. "I am scarcely out of prison, and it will require considerable lapse of time before I shall become used to freedom." He had not, he said, decided upon a future occupation. He might remain in this city, but upon that point he was not certain. One of the bystanders said that a Senator from California, now visiting New York, is anxious to have Coburn make his home on the Pacific coast and that perhaps "Joe" might go there. To this Coburn nodded.

EXPENSIVE CIGARS,

RAILROAD COLLISION.

Three Persons Instantly Killed and Several Injured Severely.

CINCINNATI, O., December 8.—A Hinton, West Virginia, special says a collision occurred at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, between a freight train going West, and an express passenger train going East, at the west entrance of Stretcher's Neck Tunnel, twenty-two miles west of here. Three persons were instantly killed and five others injured. Two engines, two passenger cars, one baggage car and five freight cars were wrecked. The killed were Henry Ancarrow, of Hinton, the engineer of the freight train, Patrick Goheen, of Hinton, fireman on the same, and Wm. Cooper, of Fayetteville, W. Va., fireman of the passenger train. The injured are B. R. Thompson, of Huntington, W. Va., conductor of the passenger train, his back and legs being broken; John Madden, of Huntington, engineer of the passenger train, leg broken and other injuries. He will probably recover. The conductor of the Cincinnati sleeping car, of Boston, name unknown, had both legs broken and is probably fatally injured. The newsboy, name unknown, was badly cut. Stephen Cole, colored, porter, from Louisa Court-house, was seriously burned. The passengers, numbering seventy-five, among whom were Senator Wallace of Kentucky, and Robert Bonner of New York, escaped uninjured. The accident was caused by a misunderstanding of orders by the freight train men, whereby they were attempting to take an hour more than had been allowed them of the passenger train's time, it being late.

Enforcing the Penal Code.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The officers of the New York Sunday Closing League have issued a circular saying that thus far about 1,500 signatures have been obtained to a paper pledging the signers to become members of the league and do all in their power to enforce in this city the new penal code relating to Sunday traffic. Most of the signers are persons who keep retail stores and have been accustomed to keeping open on the Sabbath.

Killed by the Cars.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—Proxy Drabinski, aged 10 years, while crossing the track of the Montauk Railroad at Richmond Hill, L. I., Wednesday evening, was struck by the engine of a westward-bound train and thrown a distance of sixty-two feet. She was thrown against the side of the station with such force as to break it through, killing her instantly.

"STOP YOUR NONSENSE."

Christine Nilsson's Advice to Æsthetic Oscar Wilde.

Emma Abbott's Curious Whims--Albani and Kaiser Wilhelm--Tony Pastor on the Penal Code--Interesting Theatrical Gossip.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The Herald on Saturday contained among its notes a story concerning Emma Abbott. Miss Abbott's weakness for introducing popular ballads into opera is well known, and on a recent occasion the lady sang "The Old Folks at Home" in the middle of the opera of "Lucia." The conductor of the opera is alleged to have stated that it was enough to make Donizetti turn over in his grave, but at the same time urged Miss Abbott to repeat the sacrilege, as it might have the effect of making Donizetti turn back again.

NILSSON'S REBUKE TO OSCAR WILDE.

"I met Oscar Wilde in London once," said Mme. Nilsson Roussaud the other day, "where we were both guests, and he was to take me down to dinner. He commenced to talk his nonsense and pose to me as we were going to the dining-room. I said to him: Look here, Mr. Wilde, Mme. Christine Nilsson will put up with no such stuff. This is all put on, and there is nothing in it but nonsense. Mr. Wilde said: 'Thank you. You are the first sensible woman and true friend that I've met.' After that he acted as any other man should, and talked sensibly."

KAISER WILHELM COMPLIMENTS ALBANI.

In the course of Madame Albani's recent operatic season in Berlin she sang, for the first time in her life, the opera of "Lohengrin" in German. The Emperor and Empress were present and the Kaiser was so much pleased that at the close of the opera he called Madame Albani into the Imperial box and said: "Madame, you have taught us to sing our own language." He subsequently appointed her to the honorary post of court singer.

LAURA DON GOES ABROAD.

Miss Laura Don sailed on the White Star steamer Adriatic yesterday, her physicians having ordered her abroad for her health. She will spend the winter in Southern France and Italy. On her return next fall she expects to appear again in "The Daughter of the Nile."

ELKS' BENEFIT.

The fifteenth annual entertainment by the New York Lodge, No. 1, of the Protective and Benevolent Order of Elks was given at the Grand Opera-house yesterday afternoon before a very large audience. The programme was very attractive in quality and quantity.

STETSON WANTS THE ALCAZAR.

It is now said that, in addition to S. M. Hickey, John Stetson is one of the bidders for the Alcazar. It's evident at any rate that the future oft his place, which is now run in a haphazard sort of fashion, will shortly change for the better.

TONY PASTOR'S NEW FARCE.

Tony Pastor will next week produce a new local farce called "Blue Laws; or, The Humors of the Penal Code," which will be very funny.

M'CULLOUGH'S HAMLET.

A very large and enthusiastic audience witnessed John McCullough's "Hamlet" at the Fifth Avenue Theater last night. The tragedy was admirably played throughout, and Kate Forsyth and Joseph Haworth deserve special mention for the excellent character of their support. "Othello" will be given to-night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LANGTRY IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, December 8.—Mrs. Langtry had a very fine house at the Globe Theater last night on the occasion of her first appearance before a Boston audience in the rôle of Rosalind. The audience applauded all her best lines heartily. The piece was beautifully mounted. Mrs. Langtry has taken very kindly to Boston so far, and Boston seems to reciprocate. Mrs. Langtry authorizes a statement that no breach exists between herself and Mrs. Labouchère.

"THE PAINTER'S SON."

A Starving Family with a Very Romantic History.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The attention of Capt. Riley, Brooklyn, New York, was called a few days ago to a case of destitution at a singular house upon a canal boat that was half sunk in the Erie basin. He found there were three persons, an old man, a woman aged 25 and a boy aged 8. The man was William G. York, the woman was his wife, Mary, and the little boy was her son. Mrs. York, who is a cripple, was dressed in male attire. The history of the family is a curious and romantic one. York was a marine painter. Ten years ago his first wife died, and at that time his present wife was his pupil. He owned a small yacht, and they made their home upon it. In August last while crossing in the lower bay

HIS YACHT WAS RUN DOWN

by a steamer and sunk. The old man was struck by some portion of the boat and his eyesight was destroyed. Mrs. York had one of her legs broken and is now scarcely able to walk. After the accident they made their home upon the half-sunken canal-boat. All that the Yorks possessed went down with the yacht, and the wife was left without a change of attire. This led her to adopt the male attire, and she has gone about in it begging enough to keep them from actually starving. She was known as "Joe, the old blonde painter's son."

MALICIOUS LIBEL.

Close of the Trial of Malloy vs. James Gordon Bennett.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The suit of J. Francis Malloy against James Gordon Bennett for malicious libel was tried yesterday in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Wallace. The basis of the complaint is a dispatch printed in the Herald on October 30, 1881, to the effect that a large part of the town of Edgefield, S. C., had been destroyed by fire. The dispatch closed as follows, which constituted the libel complained of:

"How the fire originated—whether accidental or the work of an incendiary—is not known, but the leading citizens are of the opinion that one Malloy, a white man who, some time ago was suspected of burning his own store for the purpose of obtaining the insurance money, kindled the fire this morning which resulted so disastrously. A suspicious circumstance pointing to the guilt of Malloy is that as soon as the alarm of fire was first sounded he hastily left the village and has not been seen since, notwithstanding that he was a property owner in the town and his house, which was was situated near the stable in which the fire originated and was consumed. The people are very indignant and swear vengeance upon Malloy. A party of men have gone out after him, and should he be found he will be summarily dealt with." The complaint also avers that in South Carolina arson is a crime punishable by hanging. The plaintiff denies that he ever set fire to the town or to any building in it, and asserts that he had no knowledge of any connection with its origin. He alleges that his business prospects have been almost entirely ruined by this publication and asks for $30,000 damages therefor. The answer of Mr. Bennett denies every allegation in the complaint. The jury was directed to hand in a sealed verdict on Monday morning.

A PENITENT THIEF.

He Restores Stolen Property and is Banqueted by the Owner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The store of Cotrell & Leonard, furriers and hatters in Albany, was entered during October by thieves who packed up sealskin dolmans to the amount of $1,5000. They escaped with the property without leaving any clue. About three weeks since the firm began to receive anonymous communications which stated that the thieves could not agree as to the division, and that it was possible to recover the goods. Friday Mr. Cotrell received at his residence a telegram stating that if he would visit Brooklyn on Saturday to meet a man the same evening, the goods would be surrendered. Mr. Cotrell's partner, Mr. Leonard, being away, it was impossible for him to respond, but he telegraphed that if the person would visit Albany on Saturday with the goods Mr. Cotrell would conduct him to his residence, treat him like a gentleman, and when the business was over take him to the midnight train. Mr. Cotrell, having received a message from the unknown correspondent, was at the depot with a carriage when the train arrived. The stranger had a heavy parcel, which Mr. Hadley, the brother-in-law to Mr. Cotrell, and the other man conveyed to the carriage, and all went to Mr. Cotrell's house. A large company was assembled to receive them. Although the guest was somewhat astonished at such a public reception, he did not for one moment lose his self-possession or betray the slightest fear. After the introduction of the visitor the parcel was unwrapped and were found unharmed. Mr. Cotrell then asked his guest into an adjoining room, where all sat down to an elegant supper. The stranger related the story of the robbery. He expressed himself as being most anxious to become a respectable member of society and then, with a profusion of thanks for the hospitality he had received, took his leave for the station, taking with him one-third of the reward offered by Cotrell.

MEET HIM WITH A CARRIAGE,

THE STOLEN GOODS

POLICE MATRONS.

New Scheme of the New York Woman Suffragists.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—About fifty members of the Woman's Suffrage party met last night at No. 103 West Forty-eighth street. Mrs. Clemence Lozier, M. D., presided. Mrs. Lilly Devereaux Blake said that she and a number of other ladies intended to visit the Mayor's office next Wednesday. They would petition the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to appropriate money to pay for matrons at the police stations. Mr. Blake reminded those present that Senator Mahone, of Virginia, had had a postmistress removed because she did not have a vote. The Rev. Annie Oliver said that when she was younger she attended a woman suffrage meeting at Cooper Institute. She had an idea at that time that the women who wished to vote all wore trousers. She was glad to discover her error. She never liked trousers even on men. The women all laughed and applauded these remarks.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—For the Middle States colder, fair weather, westerly winds and higher barometer. For the South Atlantic States fair weather, stationary or a slight fall in temperature, north to east winds, and stationary or higher barometer. For the Gulf States generally, fair weather, northeast to southeast winds, generally lower barometer and stationary or slowly rising temperature. For the Tennessee and Ohio Valleys, slowly rising temperature and falling barometer, fair weather, south to west winds. For the Lake Region, weather, south to west winds, slowly rising temperature and falling barometer in the Upper Lake Region. For the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, warmer, fair weather, southwest winds and lower barometer. The display of cautionary signals has been discontinued on Lake Superior and will be discontinued at all lake stations excepting Milwaukee, Grand Haven, Lexington and St. Joe on and after the 15th inst.

A Curious Marriage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—Some time ago Maggie Savage, aged 17 years, was bound under promise to marry Andrew Vansise, but Vansise prevailed upon Thomas Weeks to help him out of the trouble by marrying the girl himself. Weeks didn't want the girl, but consented to be the bridegroom. Maggie's friends persuaded her to marry Weeks. It appears the honeymoon ended with Weeks going to his parents and Maggie to hers. This was not the kind of a marriage Maggie desired, and she brings a suit in the Brooklyn City Court to have her marriage with Weeks declared void on the ground of fraud. Weeks has offered to provide a home for her, but she won't have it.

Fell From a Train.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—David Lithgow, living on Lansdown avenue, Philadelphia, was found yesterday morning near the elevated portion of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Brunswick street, Jersey City. Both ankles were broken and he was suffering from severe internal pains. He said while going home he had fallen from a train while stepping from one car to another. He had lain there two or three hours.

A Boy Defaulter.

ST. PAUL, December 8.—Wm. F. Thompson, of Minneapolis, was arrested yesterday, charged with defrauding $200,000 while bookkeeper of the lumber firm of Farnham & Lovejoy. It is likely the amount is even larger. He denies the charges, but the firm is confident of conviction.

Missouri Pensions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The Commissioner of Pensions, in his recent report, some portions of which have already been sent you, gives some facts of especial interest to Missouri. It shows that out of the total of enlistments in the State, numbering 147,471, there have been 20,726 applicants for pension, or about one in seven. Of these nearly one-half are still "pending." The total number admitted thus far as entitled to pensions is 18,889, all being adjudged entitled to arrears. The applicants come in all classes—invalids, widows, minors and dependents. Of invalids, the applications number 12,401, of which 3,895 have been admitted and 8,506 are still pending. Of 3,835 applications from widows 2,121 are admitted, and 1,714 still pending. Of minors there were 2,737 applicants, 2,162 admitted and 575 pending. There were also applications from dependents, of which 711 have been admitted and 1,402 are still pending. At the Topeka pension office, which pays pensions for your section of country, there are 15,193 persons on the roll who are paid $3,479,660 annually by that office, besides $10,542 of arrears. The salary and expenses of the pension agent and assistants at that office amount to $14,642 per year. Of those drawing pensions at that office there are 243 survivors of the war of 1812 and 803 widows of soldiers of 1812. It is a noticeable and somewhat curious fact that the number of widows of soldiers of the war of 1812 is more than three times as great as the number of the survivors of that war. Of the pensions now paid at the various offices 7,134 are to survivors of the war of 1812, and 24,661 are to widows of participants in that war. Another interesting statement by the Commissioner is the names and number of surviving widows of Revolutionary soldiers. There are eighty-four of them scattered throughout the country, none however, further west than Kansas. New York, North Carolina and Virginia have ten each, Tennessee nine, Pennsylvania and Georgia seven each, Vermont five, Maine, Ohio and West Virginia four each, South Carolina, New Hampshire and Indiana three apiece, Kansas and Missouri two each, and Massachusetts, Mississippi and Nebraska one apiece.

Star Route Trial.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—In the Star Route case this morning Mr. Davidge said the defense had no motion to make in respect to the array, and was willing to go on with the argument as to the number of peremptory challenges to which the defense was entitled. A discussion ensued as to the time of argument and of its decision, Judge Wylie intimating his mind was a tabula rasa on the point; that he desired enlightenment from reargument, but would not announce his decision until the question properly arose. Counsel for defense insisted it would be unfair to require them to proceed in the dark on a subject of such vital importance.

One statute gave defendants twenty challenges and none to the Government. Another gave three to the Government and three to defendants. Then a question arose whether the several defendants should be regarded as one party. It was a complicated state of affairs. Now he asked the Judge how many challenges they were entitled to. He decided it last year, and until that decision was overruled it stood as law, and counsel for defense were bound to swear it was law.

After using an hour in preliminary colloquy, and the Judge refusing to modify his resolution to withhold his announcement of his decision until the time for the exercise of the right of peremptory challenge, Davidge submitted a formal motion on the subject. The motion was overruled, and the court decided to hear argument on the question at the proper time. Direct argument of the question was then opened by Merrick, for the prosecution.

Distillers' Demands.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Representatives of the distilling interests from Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri and Illinois are beginning to gather here and to urge the extension of the bonded period. They see little hope for a reduction of the tax with the united advice of Raum, Folger and the President against it, and they will therefore give their undivided energies to the extension of the bonded period. The argument is much the same as that at the last session, viz.: that the amount of whisky in bond is so great that if it is forced out it will practically ruin many manufacturers. A few circular letters have been sent out by some of the more ambitious asking a reduction of the tax but cool-headed ones recognize that plan as useless in the present temper of Congress and the Executive. Raum, it is believed, would recommend an indefinite extension of the bonded period, and Rogers, his deputy, is outspoken in favor of it.

The Arlington Estate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The decision of the Supreme Court depriving the United States of the Arlington estate, where thousands of Union soldiers lie buried in this lovely spot overlooking the national capital, excites much interest as to the future of the estate. It is probable, from what can be gathered, that it will be offered for sale to the Government, and if at a reasonable price the whole of it bought in. What a "reasonable price" is may of course be a question on which there can be a wide difference of opinion, but it is understood that the owners desire to sell, and the probability is that the sum asked will not be over a half million, perhaps not that. Ten years ago the sum at which they valued it was $320,000, though with the general improvement in real estate in this vicinity it will be generally admitted as having grown in value since that time. The estate embraces something over a thousand acres of valuable land, to say nothing of its historic and other special values.

Doom of the Dollar.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—It really looks as though the doom of the silver dollar has been sounded this time. There has been talk all along that it must go; that at last the forced coinage of it should be suspended, and the Treasury merely authorized to coin more when they are needed, but somehow it never was brought about. The recent showing, however, of the report of the Treasurer of the United States, the recommendations of the Secretary of the Treasury, and those of the President in his message, seem likely to have their effect, and many predict that the dollar, like the Chinese, will have to go." Of the standard silver dollars coined since the act creating them only 29 per cent have gone into circulation. The remainder lie, shining and undimmed by the touch of the tradesman, in the vaults of the treasury, liable to be "returned as uncalled for."

The Tobacco Tax.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—It is evident, from talks with members, that those who favor the tariff revision are generally well pleased with the report of the Tariff Commission. The Northwestern members, particularly the Minnesota delegation, who did not favor the appointment of the commission, are now disposed to accept in the main the results of its labors. The prevailing feeling among this class is that the recommendations of the Commissioner, while not meeting all their wishes, are the best they can expect, and they say if a bill was brought into the House embodying them, they would vote for it without hesitation. These members generally oppose the tobacco tax, as they think its passage would interfere with the accomplishment of all they desire with respect to the tariff. Some members, however, oppose a material reduction of the revenues from any source. Among them is Mr. Bland, who, in an interview, said he was opposed to a repeal of the tobacco tax, not so much because it would interfere with tariff revision as because it would reduce the surplus in the Treasury, which he believed should be applied to the liquidation of the National debt. He thinks the bonds of the Government should, if possible, be redeemed as fast as they mature and for this purpose the surplus in the Treasury should be used. He said he thought there was too much tendency on the part of the Government to perpetuate the nation's debt. He had been instructed by his constituents, many of whom were tobacco growers, to favor a revision of the tariff rather than a reduction of the internal revenue. The only change they asked in the Internal Revenue System was a removal of the restrictions from the traffic in leaf tobacco, but at the same time they wanted the other burdens which resulted from the present tariff, removed.

Committee on Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8, 1881.—The House Committee on Appropriations to-day examined several bureau officers of the Treasury respecting the estimates of items to be embraced in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. It is understood a reduction of force and salaries in the Civil Service is contemplated by the committee men.

Mr. Teller decided to allow Register Letcher, of the Mitchell, Dak., land office, an opportunity to be heard in refutation of the charge of complicity in the land frauds, recently perpetrated in that office.

The Labor League at a meeting last night decided to select a board of directors from resident members who could recommend to the Senate Committee on Education and Labor the names of such members abroad as would be desirable to have summoned by legal process.

Demanding Fast Mail Service.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—There are indications that Congress will, at this session be forced to giveb etter fast mail facilities to the West and Southwest. A special demand, it is understood, will be made regarding fast mails on the lines of the Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio roads. Baltimore is making a vigorous fight for this, and if the representatives of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri join in the fight they will be pretty sure to get an improved service. Complaint is made that everything has been done in the line of fast mail thus far, between Chicago and New York exclusively, and cities further south are very much inclined to join with Baltimore, and makea grand "kick" about it. New England cities are also coming to the front with complaints of a similar nature.

Cabinet Session.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The Cabinet session to-day lasted two hours and was mainly devoted to the routine questions before the different departments. The question of naturalization, in connection with certain claims before the Spanish American Claims Commission, was also considered.

The Jeannette Court.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—In the Jeannette Court, to-day, Ninderman told the story of finding De Long and his party, substantially the same as narrated by Melville, except that he said he found five twenty-dollar gold pieces in De Long's pocket and turned them over to Melville.

Letter Postage.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The House Committee on Post-offices and Post-Roads this morning unanimously adopted the report of Chairman Bingham in favor of the passage of Representative Anderson of Kansas' bill, reducing letter postage to two cents per half ounce to take effect January 1, 1884.

Bonds Canceled.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Secretary Folger to-day ordered the cancelling of bonds delivered to the United States by the executor of the late Joseph L. Lewis, amounting to $950,000. These bonds will be included in the reduction of the debt for the present month.

The Corean Treaty.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations had under consideration the Corean treaty negotiated by Commodore Shufeldt. Considerale progress was made, but several meetings will be required to dispose of it.

Nominated.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The President to-day nominated Geo. H. Starbuck, of New York, supervising inspector of steam vessels for the Second District.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—The Senate committee on Military Affairs this morning decided to report favorably the entire list of army nominations recently referred to it.

XLVII CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Messrs. Logan, Sherman, Windom and Mitchell presented petitions for the passage of a bill to increase the pensions to one-armed and one-legged soldiers. Referred.

Senators Logan, Sherman, Jones and Hoar presented petitions of tobacco dealers asking that in case of a reduction of the tax on tobacco, a corresponding rebate be allowed. Some of the petitioners ask also for prompt action on the tobacco tax question.

Mr. Cameron, of Pennsylvania, presented a petition for the abolition of the tax on tobacco. Referred.

On motion of Mr. Merrill the Internal Revenue bill, with pending amendments, was recommitted to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Maxey, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a bill to rectify and establish the title of the United States to the site of the military post at El Paso, Texas. Passed.

House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Mr. Davis, Illinois, presented a petition of the tobacco manufacturers of Chicago, asking immediate action on the tax question as its continued agitation is depriving operatives of subsistence. Referred.

Mr. Burrows, Michigan, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the consular and diplomatic bill. Referred to Committee of the Whole. (It appropriates $1,258,255, being $79,600 less than the appropriation for the current year and $152,500 less than the estimates).

Mr. Burrows gave notice that he would ask for action on the bill to-morrow.

The House at 12:20 went into committee of the whole, Mr. Peelle, of Indiana, in the chair. On the private calender the first bill to give rise to discussion was one permitting Edgar Huson to file an application for the extension of a patent for improved gearing for wagons. Calkins, of Indiana, opposed the bill, saying the renewal of the patent simply meant a grist of suits throughout the country against persons who had been using the patent, and against innocent purchasers. Williams, of Michigan, considered the case a most meritorious one. Brown, of Indiana, saw nothing in the case which commended itself to Congress. Humphreys, of Wisconsin, argued in favor of the bill.

"OLD WASHINGTON."

Prospects of Changes when Democrats Come Into Power.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—A Sun special says: "The rise and fall of real estate in Washington throughout the different political dynasties is an interesting study. Real estate during the term of the dynasty which apparently is soon to go has been effected by many influences. They may be readily traced. The Shepherd era was too conspicuous and left its marks too distinctly to be forgotten. During that time the growth of Washington was turned unnaturally in a certain direction. The Shepherd era was a distinct and important part of the dynasty that now seems tottering. The momentum acquired under him continued long after he ceased to be a power or in any manner operated in furtherance of his magnificent plans. It is a sign of no little significance that so many of those palatial residences, of which so much has been heard, and many of the newest as well as the most costly, should be at the present on the market, and either openly or privately offered for sale, in some instances at prices that to the owners. In the good old Democratic times the quarter at and bordering on the east end of Pennsylvania avenue was the seat of fashion and real values. These times may never return, but surely it is not improbable that a complete change in the control of the Government, the fall of the present dynasty and the rise of a new one will not be without its influence on this quarter of the seat of Government. Already, if not a new life itself, the influence of the hope of it and a strong belief that it will come is felt here. The exact relation of political domination at the Capitol to the price of real estate, the growth of one section and the decline of another, may as yet be a question involving doubts in the minds of some. With the Democracy's return to its old quarters, down-town hotels will have for guests who have not for years held forth there. There is even talk of new hotels below Sixth street on a scale of unsurpassed magnificence. The days when Clay, Crittenden, Calhoun, Clayton, Benton, Webster, Evans, Fessenden, and the great men whose names mark a distinct era in our history, were all domiciled below Seventh street, are beginning to be talked about. A new department building, a theater and banks are among the things of the future. It is a pleasant topic, the revival of old Washington, when the Democracy shall have once more obtained possession of the Government."

PROMISE NO GAIN

CERTAIN NOTED CHARACTERS

HANGMAN'S DAY.

Four Executions in Different Parts of the Country.

Albert Sanders Dies on the Scaffold at Charleston, Mo.

Charles Gustave at Donaldsonville, La.; Will Porter, at Perry, Ga., and Ed. Conyers, at Swainsboro, Ga., Expiate Their Crimes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLESTON, MO., December 8.—Albert Sanders, a negro, was hanged here to-day for the murder of Moses Wing, also colored. The scaffold was erected in the rear of the Jail. It consisted of a rough pine floor, eight feet from the ground, and reached by nine steps. The platform was 8x10 feet, the trap facing the east. The drop was arranged for a fall of four feet. Sheriff W. M. Harris never superintended an execution before, yet the arrangements were all complete. A guard of twenty-five men were detailed to keep the crowd out of the jail yard. Sanders had religious attendance during the morning, and professed to be sure of heaven. One o'clock in the afternoon was the time fixed for the execution, and for two hours previously large crowds assembled at every spot where a view of the gallows could be had.

THE PRISONER,

attended by Sheriff Harris, Rev. A. J. Hess, two deputies, Charles Goodin and R. S. Craddock, and the Prosecuting Attorney, J. J. Russell, slowly ascended the scaffold. The motley crowd that had been gathering for hours about the jail yard was hushed into silence. Sanders walked with a firm step beside his guard, exhibiting little of tremor or terror. He was dressed in a neat suit of dark clothes and with a light shirt and vest. His spiritual adviser left him at 9 o'clock last night, and was with him again to-day from 10 o'clock until the end. Sanders partook of

THE LAST SACRAMENT

at half-past 11, being joined by Howard Underwood, another negro, who will be executed three weeks from to-day. Sanders sang the hymn, "Alas and did my Savior bleed," without a perceptible tremor of the voice, on the scaffold. Sanders stood facing the East, Rev. Hess at his right hand, the Sheriff at his left ready to cut the rope. A very brief prayer was made, and then a few remarks in calm tones by the prisoner followed. The black cap was drawn down, the noose adjusted, the rope cut at 12:50 and with a thud Sanders went flying through the trap. Exactly at seven and one-half minutes from the time of the drop he was pronounced dead, and the county undertaker took charge of the remains.

THE CRIME.

Albert Sanders, colored, was hanged here to-day for the murder of Moses Wing, also colored. Both these men were employed by Stephen Bird, at Bird's Point, opposite Cairo, and were jealous of each other over the affections of a colored girl. On the night of November 19, 1881, Sanders, rather the worse for liquor, went to Wing's cabin and began to break in the door. Wing tried to put him out, when Sanders drew a large knife and thrust it in Wing's back. Wing tried to run, but his assailant followed and caught him, dealing three more terrible wounds, one of which severed the jugular vein. Neighbors ran up just in time to witness the murder and capture the murderer, but the latter escaped the same night. He was recaptured in a few days, just when crossing into Kentucky. He was tried at a special term of the Circuit Court in May and sentenced to be hanged in June. An appeal to the Supreme Court was taken by mutual understanding will be left granted, however, and the sentence confirmed, the execution being fixed for to-day. Sanders had no family, but his victim left a wife and several children. Sanders was a stout negro, of the genuine African type, five feet six inches in height and weighing 140 pounds. He has been attended by Rev. A. J. Hess, of the Baptist Church, and two weeks ago was taken to a pond near the jail and publicly baptized. He died professing religion.

Charles Gustave Executed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DONALDSONVILLE, LA., December 8.—Charles Gustave was hanged here shortly after noon to-day. A large crowd witnessed the execution. The condemned was a Catholic and took communion this morning. He was accompanied by a priest on the scaffold. He confessed his crime and said he was content to die. His old mother was with him in his cell last night. He conversed calmly in French, and met death firmly.

GUSTAVE'S CRIME.

Charles Gustave, alias Charles Paul, was hanged here to-day for the murder of Eva Thompson, his mistress, last January. The woman had left Gustave, with whom she had been living, and on a Sunday morning, with her little daughter, was going to her work as cook on Mr. Landry's plantation, when she was met upon the road by Gustave. The man drew a knife and attacked her at once, and the little girl, who was the only witness, testified as follows: "Charlie Gustave attacked my mother at the store gate, knocked her down with his fist, then dragged her to the middle of the road. Then he drew a black-handled knife and stabbed her four or five times, and then ran away down the river, and I ran for my uncle and aunt."

Gustave had previously tried to break her door down and kill her. Mr. Landry and a large posse pursued the assassin, and he was captured the next day. At the time the horrible deed was committed many people going to church were attracted by the murdered woman's cries. Gustave was promptly convicted and sentenced, the feeling against him for his dastardly deed being very bitter.

In Georgia.

PERRY, GA., December 8.—Will Porter was hanged here at noon to-day. The gallows was erected in the jail yard, and the execution was private, less than a hundred persons being present. There was no crowd in town, and no excitement. No effort was made for a respite. Porter was resigned to his fate. The drop was over four feet.

HE WAS HANGED

for the murder of Will Swift, Tuesday, October 12, 1882. On that day Swift, who was a negro boy, left Macon on foot for his home in this town, with a month's wages in his pocket and a new suit of clothes on. Will Porter met him on the road and they traveled together a short distance when Porter dropped behind. Then, according to his own confession, he followed the boy, and at a time when least expected, struck him a blow on the head and crushed his skull. He then stripped his victim entirely naked, dressed himself in the boy's clothes, took all his money and left. When found the victim was unconscious, but he recovered sufficiently to give the name of his murderer and then died. Porter was afterwards detected trying to sell the boy's clothes and his children were found playing with some of Swift's property, which had been given them by their father. Porter was arrested, tried and convicted. A few weeks ago he made a full confession of the crime, giving the foregoing details to Rev. B. H. Sasnett.

THE RAILROAD WAR.

The Conference Adjourns To-day Without Reaching Any Conclusion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The conference of the presidents and other officers of the warring railroads in the Northwest took place in the Windsor Hotel this morning. All of the railroaders who were expected to take part in the meeting have arrived. Albert Keep, president of the Northwestern Road, said that his road had raised no questions. There was a report that an officer of the St. Paul had said his road would not consider the question of territorial rights in settling difficulties. President Porter, of the Omaha, had previously said he would settle on no other terms, and when the report was repeated to him he said: "In that event the conference would be of short duration." A demand by the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western and the Lake Erie and Western Roads for a rate $2 less from St. Louis, Mo., to Cleveland, O., than that charged by the Wabash and Bee lines excited a prolonged discussion at the meeting of the joint executive committee at Commissioner Fink's office yesterday.

THE MEETING WAS MORE HARMONIOUS than was expected, but the questions of territorial rights is as much mixed as ever. Neither Porter nor Riddle will make concessions and Mitchell remains firm. A prominent railroad man said that if Porter and Riddle maintain their position a settlement must be made on the basis of territorial rights, and of a division of the business to and from competitive points. Those questions which cannot be settled by mutual understanding will be left to arbitration. Mr. Hughitt, of the Northwestern road, in an interview, said: "The talk at our conference today was simply general. Every one was in a good humor, but we didn't come to any agreement. If we do not settle upon some plan for an amicable arrangement at to-morrow's meeting, it is probable the whole subject will be submitted to arbitration."

NOTHING DONE.

The conference between the presidents and managers of the northwestern roads commenced this morning. The Northwestern road is represented by President Keep and Manager Hughitt. The Rock Island by President Riddle, David Dows and Mr. Cable. The Omaha by Messrs. Porter and Bishop and the St. Paul by President Mitchell and Manager Merrill. Of the several officers referred to, all were seen. President Potter said. "I have no idea an arrangement will be reached. If such should be the case I shall be agreeably disappointed. I certainly will not recede from the position I have taken." President Mitchell said, "I can't say what will be done." Mr. Merrill said, "It is to be hoped that an agreement may be arrived at, but I can't say that we will be successful." The position of the St. Paul is pretty well understood. Messrs. Riddle, Keep and Hughitt could give no idea as to the outcome of the conference. After a session lasting two hours the meeting without any action, adjourned until to-morrow morning.

NEW YORK, December 8.—A special to the Times from Raleigh, N. The young lady attempted to fly, but was overtaken by Clark and criminally assaulted several times. In order to stop her screams the scoundrel gagged her and after the commission of his crime left her half dead in the woods. She made her way home and is in a critical condition. Clark has not been caught, though a large reward will be offered for his body, dead or alive.

Important Cotton Decision.

MEMPHIS, December 8.—United States Judge Caldwell, of the Eastern District of Arkansas, yesterday rendered a decision involving the liability of parties who had bought cotton futures from the Tennessee Brokerage Association in this city for delivery in New York in March, 1881. The contracting parties had ordered that their purchases should be protected and not be permitted to exhaust. Cotton declined rapidly at the time, and the Helena parties threw up their contracts. Suit has been brought for margins due on the contracts up to the time when the Brokerage Association was notified to close them. Judge Caldwell decided in favor of the Brokerage Association, on the ground that the transactions were legitimate and the contracts exhibited in court were valid ones.

England.

LONDON, December 8.—The fire which broke out last night on the premises of Foster, Porter & Co., wholesale hosiery, Wood street, was the greatest which has occurred in London since the celebrated Tooley street fire. The loss is estimated at upwards of £2,000,000. The whole block between London, Wall, Philip Lane, Addle street and Wood street, except the warehouses on the corners of London and Wall streets, have been destroyed. The fire is not subdued and the remainder of the block is still in danger. It is believed eight persons are injured, some seriously. Foster, Porter & Co. had a stock of silk goods alone estimated as worth £600,000. The salvage corps succeeded in saving a large amount of goods. The walls of the warehouses burned on Wood street and Phillip lane fell into the roadway with a crash like thunder, filling the streets with burning debris.

At this hour the engines are still pouring immense volumes of water on the ruins and the fire is under control. The burnt area is over two acres. One fireman was killed by the falling walls.

PROBABLE CABINET CHANGES.

LONDON, December 8.—The Times says it has reason to believe that soon after Christmas Derby will be invited to join the Cabinet. Childers, now War Secretary, will become Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Dilke, Under Foreign Secretary, will enter the Cabinet. It says these changes may be the precursors of even more important ones. It is possible that before the end of the next session of Parliament Gladstone may consider himself entitled to retire, and in such a contingency there is little doubt that Harlington will become Prime Minister.

SERIOUS CHARGE.

A Curious Dealing of a Real Estate Man.

How a Widow Sold Her Property, and the Real Estate Agent's Big Profit.

A few days ago Mr. Julius Laughlin, the well-known lawyer, made an application for a warrant to the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of the Court of Criminal Correction against a prominent Eighth street real estate agent. The statements of the attorney were received, but the issuance of the warrant was deferred until the matter could be more minutely inquired into and the law under which it was intended to prosecute could be more closely examined. The nature of the case has been made public by friends of the prosecuting witness, who claim that she was defrauded out of $2,050 by the agent. Mrs. Rannels, the wife of the late Judge Chas. Rannels, intrusted the charge of her real estate to the agent in question. With other property was a lot which the lady desired to have sold and asked to be placed on the market. She was recently informed by her agent that the property was not good, salable real estate, and he had not received any better offer than $500 since it had been on the market. As she was desirous of disposing of the property, she authorized him to sell it at this figure, which she was under the impression was the best she could get. A deed was drawn up and she was introduced to the purchaser, a Mr. Jones, who now claims that he is entirely innocent of any wrong action in the premises. The deed was drawn up and signed by Mrs. Rannels, who received a check for the $500 minus a commission of $50 paid the real estate agent. Mr. Jones says he received only $5 for his services. A few days after this transaction the property was again sold by the real estate man to a third party for $2,500. In the meantime no improvements or changes, or at least none which would cause such a change in valuation, had been made by the first purchaser. The prosecution now alleges that the agent had the offer of $2,500 for the property pending at the time he reported to Mrs. Rannels that the highest cash price he could obtain was $500, and that the transaction was planned to defraud the lady out of the advantageous sale which was afterwards made, and by which the real estate man was the gainer. There is considerable doubt whether such a transaction can be construed into an offense under the statutes. It is probably covered by the Harrigan fraud act, which includes all attempts to defraud of any description. No warrant has yet been issued, though it is highly probable that a criminal prosecution will issue unless the prospective defendant compromises the case, which in view of the allegations of the applicants presents a very ugly phase as far as the real estate man is concerned.

THE MATHEWS MURDER.

Motion For New Trial Overruled—Sentenced to Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BELLEVILLE, ILL., December 8.—Judge Wall, in the Belleville Circuit Court, this morning overruled the motion for a new trial in the Mathews murder case, and will set the date for execution of the death sentence this evening. The facts connected with the cold and brutal murder of Anna Geyer are still fresh in the minds of the public. Philip Mathews, a lad of only nineteen, had been keeping company with, and was engaged to be married to Miss Geyer, about two years previous to the 28th of last May, when they met at a picnic ground outside of Belleville, and she informed him she could never marry him because she was about to wed another. Mathews drew a revolver and fired, the ball taking effect in the breast of the girl and producing immediate death. Mathews remained in jail till the second of last month, when his trial took place, lasting four days and terminating in a verdict of guilty. Mr. Winkelmann, attorney for the accused, fought vigorously first for a change of venue and then for a continuance but both were denied. Yesterday a motion for a new trial was made, the following being the points relied upon: First, that an error was made in overruling defendant's application for a change of venue. Second, an error was made in overruling application for continuance. Third, in overruling defendant's objections to eight jurors whose names are given. Fourth, in admitting improper testimony given the on part of the people. Fifth, in refusing to give defendant's fourth and fifth instructions as they were presented—the court having modified them. Sixth, in giving all the instructions offered by the prosecution. Seventh, in permitting counsel for prosecution to comment in the argument upon matter not in the record. Eighth, that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence and contrary to law. The State's Attorney briefly answered the objections, after which the motion was taken under advisement till this morning, when Judge Wall overruled it.

A $175,000 FIRE.

Big Conflagration in Saginaw City this Morning—The Losses.

EAST SAGINAW, December 8.—At an early hour this morning a fire broke out in the works of the Saginaw Barrel Company in Saginaw City, and spread rapidly. The weather was bitterly cold and interfered with the working of the fire companies. Before it could be controlled, the barrel factory, saw mill, drill house to the Salt Block, a portion of the salt Bock-sheds, dry kilns, a large quantity of the products of the works and about two million feet of valuable lumber in the yard burned up. There was an investment of $90,000 in the building and machinery. The total loss will approximate $175,000. The insurance is not known at this writing, the secretary refusing to give it, probably owing to the excitement of the occasion, but the property is understood to be fairly well insured. One hundred and fifty men are thrown out of employment.

Killed on an Elevator.

John Schropschreyer, a porter employed at 106 South Second street, while ascending to the second story of the building at 3 p. m., on the elevator, was struck by the flooring of the second story, the skull being split and almost instant death resulting. Schropschreyer was to blame for the accident, sitting on the edge of the elevator in such a manner that his body could not pass through the opening without striking the flooring. The body was removed to the Morgue. Scrapschreyer was 21 years of age, single, and resided on Ninth street, between Emily and Soulard streets.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Receipts 5,420 brls. Movement very slow and the market unchanged and dull, with a very small demand. The feeling still continues weak and sales are made more or less in buyers' favor. Quotations are as follows: Extra fancy $4 85@5 00; fancy $4 60@4 70; choice $4 40@4 60; family $3 65@4 85; XXX $3 30@3 45; XX $2 90@3 00; X $2 80@2 85; superfine $2 70@2 75; fine $2 50@2 55; favorite brands 25c higher; patents $5 50@6.

Buckwheat Flour—Lower; New York jobs $7 25@7 75; Wisconsin $7 25, and car lots of New York worth $7.

Cornmeal—Unchanged at $2 45@2 50 on orders delivered; grits, pearl meal and hominy at $4 25@4 60.

Rye Flour—Steady and in demand; movement fairly active at $3 75@4 00.

Wheat—Receipts 853 sks., 17,400 bu. A quiet and uninteresting market, developing nothing new either in demand or values. Speculative operators gave scant attention to futures, and they were consequently very tame, but the tone was firm all through. Cash grades moved quietly and a small business was transacted, mainly for shipment, but prices held up firmly and No. 2 red, No. 3 red and No. 2 Mediterranean were slightly better. No. 2 red, cash, 94⅝@94½ regular; year 94⅜@94½; January 95⅞@96; February 97¾ bid; March 99¼ bid; April $1 01¼ bid; May $1 03⅛@$1 03; No. 3 red 89¼@90¾ regular; No. 4 84 asked this side, 83 bid; rejected 78 in C., 79¼ in A.; No. 2 Mediterranean 97@96¼ this, and 97¼ E. side; No. 3 do. 93 this side.

Corn—Receipts 114 sks, 27,500 bu. A stronger and better feeling cropped out in the future market, as a result in part of higher markets elsewhere, but there was also a more confident tone on the part of the buyers, who were purchasing freely in anticipation of smaller receipts while this market is so much below Chicago in price. At the close year was ¾@⅞c, Jan. 1c, Feb. ⅞c, and May ½c above yesterday's close. Grade No. 2 did not reach yesterday's rates, but sold readily, while all the other qualities advanced and were strong, with an active shipping and milling demand, latter for white mixed. No. 2 mixed cash 49¾ regular; year 48¼ to 49¾, closing 49⅝; January 48¼ to 49¾, closing 49¼; February 49 to 49¾@¼, closing 49¼ bid; March 49⅝ bid; May 50¼ to 51¼; No. 2 white mixed 49½ regular; rejected do 43 bid regular; new do 45 regular, 46 in E., 46@46¼ this side; new mixed 45@46, closing 45⅜ this and 46 E. side; rejected 45 in St. L.; no grade 42½ bid St. L., 39¼ asked E. side.

Oats—Receipts —— sks, 3,600 bu. Higher. Such an urgent demand came for cash and the near by options that they advanced sharply. Offerings of grades were very small and this caused buyers to advance their bids, but shorts were striving to put prices up so as to attract large shipments here, and the longs kindly aided them, so as to be able, if possible, to unload for year and January at the higher prices. The latest sales were at advances of ⅜c for year, 1c for January, ⅜c for February and ¼c for May. No. 2 cash 38½@39 in St. L., closing at 38⅜ bid; year 36¼ to 37½, closing 37¼; January 35¼ to 35⅞; February 35⅜; May 36⅜; rejected 38 bid St. L.

Rye—Receipts —— sks, 559 bu. Higher and strong, the demand for No. 2 absorbing all offerings at the advance and paying 55¼ for regular; rejected sold in a small way at 52.

Barley—Receipts 289 sacks, 8,000 bu. Dull and unchanged; small business. We quote: Rejected 40@45; No. 2 50@60; prime strictly 60@65; choice 68@75; fancy 80@85.

Hay—Receipts 269 tons. Firm, and prairie stronger in value; demand very good. This side—Prairie $9@10 25; mixed $12; timothy $12 50@16 50; East track—timothy $12@15.

Millfeed very dull, as there was hardly any inquiry for it. Bulk bran sold at 51 E. track; for sacked f. o. b. this side 60 was bid and 62 f. o. b. E. track, with 63 asked for latter.

Provisions—Receipts 1,000 lbs hams, 71,400 lbs meats, 384 lbs lard, 2,600 lbs grease. The suspension of navigation made the market about dead dull, so little could be done, but there was no change in price to speak of. Nothing was done in spot pork, for which $17 25 was bid, but 500 lbs February sold at $17 60; January was offered at $17 60, bid $17 40. A small lot lard sold at 10¼, and that was bid for round lots, with 10.57½ bid. Dry salt shoulders loose brought 6¾, boxed long clear 9 and short clear 9¼@9.60. Packed bacon short clear sold at 11¼. Green hams 15@16 lb average 9¼; 14@15 lb 9⅜@¼. Hams 13¼@14½. Tallow 7½ for prime to strictly prime in oil brls; medium and falling off lots in irregular pkgs 7@7¼; grease tallow 6¾. Breakfast bacon 14½@15½. Grease 5@5½ for brown, 6@7c yellow, 7½@8¼c for white. Beef—Extra mess $12@16 per brl, according to brand; $7 50@8 50 per half brl; dried 12@½c; strictly choice 15c per pound. Fresh smoked tongues $4 50@5 per doz. Salt—Domestic $1 10@1 20 per brl. Ground alum $1 15 per sack for round lots, $1 20@1 25 in a small way.

Highwines—Steady at $1 16; movement good; sales of 253 brls.; Cincinnati lower and quiet at $1 14; Chicago unchanged at $1 17; Peoria firm at $1 15.

Lead continues dull. Refined could be purchased at $4 25 and hard at $4 12½.

Grass Seeds—In request but trading small; inquiry principally for prime; all other slow and weak. We quote timothy at $1 50@1 55; clover $5 40@5 60; red top 55@65. German millet wanted at 90@95; 1 car sold at 77½; common do 45@60. Hungarian 50@55.

Flaxseed—Nothing doing and none offered; $1 12 is about the highest price obtainable.

Hempseed—Quiet but steady at $1 20@1 22½.

Castor Beans—Still in active request from both crushers and speculators. Sales at $1 40 and $1 33, the latter rejected. Damaged worth about $1 25@1 30. No. 2 $1 35.

CATTLE—The very small supply offered on sale this morning was no inducement to buyers, and the movement up to a late hour was confined to a few sales to retailers, who selected the best suited to their wants. Values were neither higher nor lower, and the markets may be said to be at a standstill. Even had there been any grades suitable for shipment it is more than likely that no purchasers could have been found, as shippers were not disposed to take hold very freely at the prices asked. The few transactions this morning were at $4 for Southwest steers, and $3 40@3 70 for native cows. Yesterday quite a number of good native cattle were sold in the afternoon to dressed beef shippers and others, the prices paid being $4 10@4 62½. To-day values ruled quiet but steady at the following:

HOGS—The activity and good feeling noticeable in the market yesterday has given place to dullness, and an easier feeling. In consequence the movement was decidedly slow. Packers were holding back, and it took considerable talking in order to make sales, and even then it was only accomplished by shading prices to a greater or less extent. The arrivals were of an improved quality, and consisted of about seventy car loads. To packers transactions were made at $6 10@6 45, and to butchers at $6 25@6 50. In lighter hogs there was nothing doing. We quote light to good Yorkers at $5 75@6 00; mixed packing $6 10@6 35; good do $6 40@6 45; butchers to extra heavy $6 50@6 65; skips and culls $5@5 50.

BOB INGERSOLL is firmly convinced of the existence of a prejudice against his clients. It does look that way.

THINK of those people up at La Crosse, Wis., where the thermometer registered 25° below zero yesterday morning!

A BLIZZARD from Montana is not a good thing to wrestle with, but blizzards seem done able to give us good hard streets in St. Louis.

THE cold weather continues and the real estate dealers expect that in the spring there will be a lively demand for gilt-edged property from the plumbers.

THE New York papers very generally agree that JOHN MCCULLOUGH, the actor, is improving in his voice and his art. It is mentioned that he discards both wine and tobacco.

THE Tariff Commission report seems to be very favorably received and represents the probable action of Congress more accurately than any other programme that has been suggested.

THE United States will not go to war with France on account of Madagascar, but if France bullies us too much we might offer inducements to WILHELM and BISMARCK to do us a friendly turn.

THE London News says that the Maharajah of Burdwan has a throne of beaten gold elaborately decorated with jewels. The Maharajah is probably interested in the Star-Route contracts for carrying the mails in his dominions.

WASHINGTON correspondents say that the Democratic members of the present House would elect CARLISLE over RANDALL by a majority of two to one. This strong preference of the members holding over will be apt to infect the new ones before the next Congress meets.

THE Star Route attorneys are not helping their unfortunate clients by the pretense that the removal of Marshal HENRY was an act of intimidation against witnesses and jurors. The trouble with them is that they are in the fix of the comic Irishman who was told that he need not be afraid, as justice would be done to him, and who answered that that was just what he was afraid of.

THE Commander-in-Chief of Her Britannic Majesty's forces in Ireland has awarded a special gratuity of £5 to the peeler who arrested the murderers of Detective COX. As this is exactly the amount awarded by Her Majesty to meritorious married couples who have increased the resources of the Empire by having triplets, there is a general opinion that the gratuity is inadequate.

THE Hungarian Government, alarmed at the extent of emigration, has petitioned Austria to stop all poor creatures who are trying to get away from wretchedness and who are unprovided with passports. They have a theory over there that when human beings are born in a poor monarchical land they must remain there and contribute their bones to the fertilization of the land which has nurtured them.

SEVERAL of ARABI PASHA'S side partners, who took part in the effort to establish a home government in Egypt have been requested to absent themselves from the country for the remainder of their natural lives. The patriotic gentlemen failed to secure good government for the Egyptians, but they will be able to enjoy that luxury for some time themselves—especially if they take up their residence in this country under the auspices of Mr. BARNUM.

CAPT. SHAW, of the London Fire Brigade, who came over to this country last summer and turned up his nose at nearly everything he saw in the way of fire-extinguishing apparatus, has been struggling in London for two days with the greatest conflagration that has occurred in that city since the Tooley street fire. In view of the fact that the buildings in London contain little combustible matter, and that high winds are almost unknown, we must conclude that the Captain is a little short in his equipment. He has probably been unable as yet to turn to profit by the information which he picked up in the United States.

JUST before leaving New York Mrs. LANGTRY told a reporter that a friend had asked her to what she devoted her time, and that she replied, "To my art and Delmonico's." Her body-guards and watchers have protected her from all perils but this. How fatal it is to beautiful actresses may be inferred from the following reference of a New York paper to the sickness of a stage beauty: "Her illness is greatly due to high living. Champagne, game suppers and luxury are much more injurious to a prima donna who has risen from low degree than any amount of hard work in her profession. Nothing lays an actress up quicker than canvass-back ducks, and nothing destroys a singer's voice quicker than Pommery Sec."

THE tender solicitude of the Cincinnati Commercial for the welfare of the people of New Orleans is not surpassed in the annals of philanthropy. It wants them to have a deep-water channel to the sea, and it is determined to give it to them if it has to turn the whole current of the Mississippi aside, and in the zeal of its loving kindness it refuses to heed the protests of the people of New Orleans, who aver, with much probability and show of truth, that they already have a channel as deep and safe as the channel into New York harbor.

ONE of the most cheerful suggestions we have heard of for some time is the suggestion that our four unfinished monitors should be finished "to get rid of them." There is a ghastly pleasantry about this prospect which is not exactly calculated to improve the spirits of our naval officers who might be selected as the victims when the monitors were finished and ready to be got rid of, and perhaps it would be more humane, as well as cheaper, to sell the monitors for old iron, or even to sink them as they float before manning them.

EXPLAINING THE BLUE LAW.

New York last Sunday presented probably the most absurd spectacle that any great city in modern times has ever presented, in the sight of citizens pursued and arrested with promiscuous irregularity by the police force, for doing things that they had been permitted to do in peace ever since they were born—things that they even flattered themselves were useful to the community which on that day sent out its policemen to arrest them. Bootblacks and newsboys, day-laborers, barbers, butchers, in fact almost every class except saloon-keepers, were represented in the motley throng that appeared on Monday morning before the police Rhadamanthus, to be discharged on the plea of "not guilty," with the warning not to do so again.

But now DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, the reviser of the code in which Sabbatarian offenses were recognized, has come out and says that great mistakes were made, and that the code is clear and simple, and that its language runs as follows: "The first day of the week being by general consent set apart for rest and religious uses, the law prohibits on that day the doing of certain acts hereafter specified which are serious interruptions of the repose and religious liberty of the community," and further on he specifies confusedly enough these acts as: first, servile labor; second, public sports and shows; third, trades, manufactures and mechanica employment; fourth, public traffic, and fifth, serving process.

The absurdity of such a specification is that it has no connection whatever with the object of the Sunday law, which the code itself declares is merely the prevention of acts which are "serious interruptions of the repose and religious liberty of the community," and it embraces subjects the most diverse and incongruous. Even if we admit that it is a violation of the repose and religious liberty of the community for public sports and shows to be carried on, no such pretense can be alleged against ordinary trades, which disturb no one, and against a great many mechanical employments, which the citizens have a natural right to pursue.

But the absurdity is carried to completeness by the limitation of the statute that these acts are prohibited, not absolutely, but "except in a work of charity and necessity." When the question arises as to what is a work of necessity the reviser of the code defines it as one which is "necessary to the comfort and convenience or welfare of the community at large." How we are to distinguish a necessary act from an unnecessary one does not appear, but MR. FIELD explains that it is a work of necessity for a citizen to get shaved in a barber shop on Sunday and to get his boots blacked on Sunday.

This sets aside the whole Sunday law as a farce unworthy of serious notice. It means that the works of necessity are the works which the Sabbatarians want to have done to suit their convenience, while the works which the Sabbatarians do not want to have done are criminal and to be punished. It is the old story of orthodoxy being "my doxy" and heterodoxy being every other man's doxy, which is a convenient view for those who can enforce it, but which has long since ceased to be possible of enforcement in this country.

A CHOICE OF OPINIONS.

It would be much easier for plain men to make up their minds about affairs of state if the great people to whom we pay large salaries for attending to these affairs could occasionally make up their minds to agree about a work which they are conjointly carrying on. Here, for instance, is this matter of revenue reduction, about which one would think that at least the President and his Cabinet would have one opinion But in his message President ARTHUR recommends, for the benefit of the revenue, the abolition of all internal revenue taxes except those on spirits, while his Secretary of the Treasury, who has the matter of the revenue more directly in charge, sends in a simultaneous message in which he says that we cannot do without the taxes which the President says we ought to abolish. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who, though a great man, is quite a subordinate under these greater men, also has views of his own as to what we should do with the internal revenue, and his views do not harmonize with those of his superior officers.

How is a plain man to make up his mind when these great men have as many different minds as there are different great men? It is as hard to make up one's mind about the tariff as it is about the internal revenue. The President declares that we ought to remove the tariff on articles which produce an inconsiderable revenue, bnt the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee thinks the tariff most successful in those items in which it reduces competition by reducing imports, while the Tariff Commission, which is the most learned and competent body of experts ever picked out by the lottery of politics, has a third plan of its own in which all tariff wisdom is summed up.

Σ This difficulty of arriving at an opinion is further complicated by the fact that members of Congress of the same party, who ought to agree like birds in their little nests, are as discordant and divergent as if they were Cabinet Ministers. Instead of holding the lamp aloft to guide the people, they are banging the lamps against each others' heads and making darkness and confusion. Some very good Democrats are protectionists, and others are in favor of a revenue tariff; some very good Republicans are in favor of wiping out all internal revenue taxes, while others are in favor of keeping nearly all, and the times have come when it is almost necessary for every citizen to do his thinking for himself, and not to attempt to guide his political course by the opinions of the leaders.

NATIONAL PROTECTION.

Humiliating contrasts between our navy and that of France are in order, because our naval inferiority seems to be the only thing that prevents us from having a first-class row with France. It appears that we have more trade than France with Madagascar and more missionaries there converting the heathen; also that our merchants and missionaries have been very active and influential in involving the Malagassy Queen in a difficulty with France, in the course of which it is alleged that some of our citizens have been murdered in the northwestern part of the island. There is consequently some talk about holding France responsible for these murders, in connection with an appeal from the Madagascar Government to ours for protection, France having treated the local authority with contempt and threatened to seize an extensive tract of coast. This talk is met by a portion of the French press with sneers at our ridiculous navy, and the friends of JOHN ROACH are indulging the hope that our national pride will respond to this insult with huge appropriations for more steel-clad naval monsters.

But there never was a situation that better illustrated the danger of strengthening our naval force. It is against our settled policy to engage in the business of protecting the weak against the strong on the other side of the globe. A navy not strong enough to tempt us into that business would not be strong enough to bring a perverse French Government to terms with reference to the alleged murder of Americans in Madagascar. We have other means more potent than a navy three times as strong as our present one. There is not the slightest danger that France will presume on our naval weakness to wrong us, and there is no more occasion for our matching her navy than for our matching her army. She is not going to let any reasonable demand from us disturb her commercial relations with the United States, and there are other menacing powers for whom she maintains her huge armament. She has long ago surrendered all territory and all thought of interfering on this side of the Atlantic, and to have a war with her we must go seek it on the other side by opposing her African schemes. We don't need war ships for any such purpose.

As to the other great naval power, England, we could, in case of war with her, take her American possessions in spite of all the navies in the world, and thereby indemnify ourselves for all the harm the combined navies of France and England could do to our sea-coast cities. Fifty-two millions of people occupying a vast territory easily acquired by a few millions of their ancestors from England and France, need no navy to protect them from either of the two powers that surrendered said territory to their fathers when they were few and poor. Mrs. Toodles' reason for buying a door-knocker with Thompson's name on it was not more fanciful and far-fetched than the idea that we need a formidable navy to make France and England respect our power and our rights.

UNION DEPOT CONNECTIONS.

A bill has been introduced granting to certain incorporators the right to construct a North and South street railway along the Tayon avenue line from Sidney street on the south to Cass avenue on the north. It is just as well to wait before granting such a franchise until the location of the new Union Depot is determined on, and when that point is settled it will be well to see that satisfactory arrangements are made for reaching Fourth street from the Union Depot for a single fare and without change of cars. Of the existing lines the nearest to the expected location of the depot is the Fourteenth street line, which is open to the objection that it runs bob-tail cars in defiance of common sense, and that it starts from the south side of the depot site and travels up a steep grade, requiring a long ride to reach the central part of the city. The Market street line comes just near enough to miss it. A franchise which would cover a line from Fourth street west to Nineteenth or Twentieth street with a south and north branch might turn out to be the best solution of the problem, and might even be so valuable that capitalists would be willing to pay the city a bonus for the charter. Of course such a line would be much less valuable if another company already had the valuable ipriviiege of the north and south traffic. The proposed Tayon avenue line can afford to wait a month or two until the city knows just what it is doing in granting the franchise.

SENATOR HALE, of Maine, feels called on to defend the political assessment record of his party in the last campaign by introducing, in the shape of a resolution, the flimsy allegation that the Democratic Congressional Committee had levied assessments on liquor dealers', brewers' and other associations, and in calling on the Committe on Judiciary to investigate these charges. If HALE can find a document signed by the officers of the Democratic committee, and addressed to any brewers "or other associations," calling on them for money, he will be in a much better position than he is in now, but even then there would be a wide difference between this reprehensible folly, over which the Senate has no jurisdiction, and the crime of levying assessments in the name of a political party on the public servants who are paid to work for the people. Mr. HALE'S attempt to evade the responsibility for the HUBBELL circulars is neither creditable nor successful.

THE information first given to the public of St. Louis through the POST-DISPATCH that a young doctor in this city had introduced the professional novelty of charging his patients by the year for his services, is now supplemented by the statement that in New Zealand it is the universal custom to keep the supply of doctors down to the demand by forming clubs whose members are doctored at yearly rates, the annual charge for each member being something less than five dollars. The advantages of such a plan are so obvious that we shall expect to see it spread in St. Louis, and there is just one improvement on it which we might borrow from China, and that is to require the doctor to keep his patients well by stopping his pay in case of sickness. What this new age requires is new methods and new ideas.

THAT bloody and ferocious savage who spells his name JU and pronounces it "Hoo," has distinguished himself afresh by the in' discriminate massacre of the whole population of a Mexican village just over the Chihuahua border, using our territory as a base for his raids. If the murdering savages whom we pension and pamper should take it into their heads to destroy a village full of Queen VICTORIA'S subjects we would be compelled to pay heavy damages and give bonds for keeping our murderers at home. But as Mexico is both friendly and peaceful and forbearing in all her relations towards us, we shall probably be ready to feed Hoo on agency rations and keep him in good trim for future raids.

OUR MAIL POUCH.

A Card from Salvini's Manager.

ST. LOUIS, December 7, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Permit me in behalf of the management of Signor Salvini to disabuse your mind respecting an error made by your estimable journal of this date, under the head of "Amusements," in stating 'that "at the eleventh hour, etc.," the management had concluded to substitute "The Gladiator" for "The Outlaw" (La Mort Civile) for Friday evening. Such a thought, I can assure you, was never for a moment entertained, either by Signor Salvini or Manager Chizzola, who are indeed perplexed that such a mistake should have occurred in your usually comprehensive summary of all that interests the good citizens of St. Louis. That Signor Salvini and Manager Chizzola take the greatest pride in affording the public an opportunity to witness one of the grandest dramatic portraitures ever seen on any stage, in any clime, and that the Signor will appear in "The Outlaw" Friday evening, as already announced, is an undeniable fact, vouched for by

Yours very obediently,
W. H. MORTON.

[The morning papers yesterday announced in their advertising columns that Salvini would play "The Gladiator" to-night. The POST-DISPATCH, regarding these announcements as official, referred to the change. The mistake was not ours and we attempted in our last edition to correct the erroneous announcement. We hope to be forgiven. -ED. P.-D.]

Advice to a Young Man.

ST. LOUIS, December 7.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Could you, in any form, do me a favor? I am a young man about 26 years old. I am but a few months in this country. I have got a fair position for my time here. I board at a restaurant and I room in a nice locality. When I come home in the evening there is a nice fire before me and everything comfortable around, and the only consolation I have when I take off my shoes and put on my slippers is to enjoy a cigar and read your very interesting paper. But that does not suffice. There is an aching void. I never hear the voice of the angel that makes life happy (I mean in the house) save that of a cat or the bark of a dog. I sometimes think I am like a sparrow, alone on the housetop. What would you suggest me to do? Is there no hope for me? CYPRESS.

[As you seem to have domestic tastes and a sense of your loneliness, we would advise you to join some of the dancing clubs this winter and marry the first good girl that you get acquainted with, provided you can see your way clear to the maintenance of a wife.—ED. P.-D.]

The Sheep-Raising Industry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please inform me through the columns of your paper the best part of the West to go to to raise sheep and carry on farming? How about Northwestern Texas? Does it rain seasonably there, and can Government land be had there and at what price? Do you think it preferable to Colorado? By answering the above you will confer a great favor upon A SUBSCRIBER.

[Northwestern Texas is fairly adapted to sheep raising. You can buy land there very cheaply from the State of Texas, but it is being rapidly taken up by big companies. The seasons are not regular. The climate is very much like that of Western Kansas, and good crops can only be depended on about once in three years. If you wish to carry on sheep raising and farming at the same time you will find excellent lands for that purpose in Missouri.—ED. P.-D.]

Caught in the Freeze-Up.

ST. LOUIS, MO., December 7, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please send your photographic reporter to the southwest corner of Thirteenth and Washington avenue, and cause him to take an impression of the hay wagon sunk to its hubs in mud and frozen in. The proprietor of the same called with his mules this morning to carry his load home, but the combined strength of his team and a half dozen bystanders could not budge it. The picture might be preserved among the archives of our city as a credit to our present administration.
TAX-PAYER.

A Little More Straw, Capt. Shea.

ST. LOUIS, December 8.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I would like to call the attention of Mr. Shea, the superintendent of the People's line of street cars, to the fact that it would be a great comfort to his passengers, on these cold mornings if he would have straw on the floor of his cars. I heard several passengers both yesterday and this morning complaining that their feet were so cold, and I am sure a little straw would greatly add to their comfort. By inserting this in your paper you will much oblige, yours truly, A. P.

CITY HALL NOTES.

Mr. Wm. Morrison, for several years weigher at the Thorp scales, this morning tendered his resignation to Mayor Ewing.

Receipts at the City Treasury to-day are: From the City Marshal on account of the South St. Louis Police Court, $42; from the City Collector, $13,771 60; and from the Inspector of Weights and Measures, $32 10.

Harbor and Wharf Commissioner Charles Pfeifer is confined to his home by a very severe attack of illness. Mr. Pfeifer has been in a fragile state of health for a number of years past. His friends hope the best outcome from his present illness.

The death of Patrick Farrell, Justice of the Peace for the Ninth District, leaves a vacancy which the Mayor will be required to fill. Justice Farrell was elected at the recent election for a term of four years. His successor, the Major's appointee, will be commissioned to fill the unexpired portion of Judge Farrell's term. The section of law authorizing this appointment by the Mayor is as follows: Section 2809 of the Revised Statutes of 1879, provides: When a vacancy occurs in the office of Justice of the Peace the County Court of the county in which such vacany occurs may supply the same by the appointment of some person competent and qualified, who shall hold his office until the next general election of county officers, and until his successor is elected, commissioned and qualified." The question has occurred to the Mayor, whether under this section of law his appointee, to fill the vacancy, caused by the death of Justice Farrell, is entitled to be commissioned until the general election in November, 1886, or only until the election in the Ninth District in November, 1884. This, of course, would complicate matters considerably. This morning the Mayor decided to make his appointments for the unexpired portion of Judge Farrell's term, leaving future complications to adjust themselves. Who the appointee will be is an open question as yet.

Criminal Notes.

To-day the following defendants, indicted by the present grand jury, were arraigned in the Criminal Court and pleaded not guilty to the charges: Maggie Dougherty, Chas. Browning, Alex. Randell, Robert Johnson and John Rogers, burglary; Charles Kelly, embezzlement; Henry Mack, indecent assault; Sanders Rogers, attempted indecent assault; Henry Simms, murder in the second degree; Patrick Burns, Mike McCune, Ed. Harris and George Robinson, assault to kill; Robert McKenzie and Thomas Reilly, robbery, and Charles Robinson, fraud.

Robert Johnson, who robbed the house No. 1518 Olive street, then occupied by Mrs. MinnieMuiroy, pleaded guilty to-day and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

In the Criminal Court James Munson, alias Snow, to-day pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary committed in the house occupied by Peter Burns. Sentence was deferred.

This afternoon Bernard Engelke, Edward Barrett and C. H. Peck were arraigned in the Court of Criminal Correction on a charge of conspiracy. The charges grew out of the Windsor Hotel suit. The afternoon was taken up in trying to select a special Judge, as Judge Noonan was Assistant Circuit Attorney when the indictment was found, and was consequently disqualified to try the case.

Doings In Committee.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs this morning authorized the chairman to request the House to fix days for the consideration of the Nicaragua Canal and Venezulean Claims bills.

The House Committee on Commerce adopted a resolution asking the Secretary of War to send certain estimates required by law which had not been received, and, after a discussion of the President's reference to the river and harbor bill in his annual message, agreed to a resolution asking the Secretary of War to state what appropriation, made at the last session were not in the interest of commerce.

The House Judiciary Committee agreed upon fixing next Tuesday for the consideration of a bill for the relief of the Supreme Court known as the Davis bill, which provides for additional jurors for the court. The House Elections Committee had up the case of Caine, who claims admission as a Utah delegate. It was referred to a sub-committee. The case of Jones versus Shelley was also referred to a sub-committee.

Collapsed and Suspended.

DENVER, COL., December 8.—The Denver Fire Insurance Company collapsed. It organized fifteen months ago with a capital stock of $1,000,000, of which over one-fourth had been paid in. A. C. Fisk was elected President; A. H. Russel, vice-President; R. P. Goddard, secretary, who on January 1, 1882, made a most flattering statement of the company's condition. It now transpires it never had a dollar of capital in money in the treasury, and the only assets consisted of a few unsecured individual notes and tracts of unimproved land in the Southern States, to which they held an imperfect title. There is trouble ahead. The Bank of Breckenridge, Breckenridge, Col., suspended this morning. Small affair. Failure regarded unimportant by bankers here.

A VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

Mr. Kleinschmidt Deposes in the Celebrated Sixth Street Suit.

In the law office of Hermann & Reyburn, at 10 o'clock this morning, the taking of depositions in the celebrated case of the proprietors of the People's Theater against Francis T. Kleinschmidt, for $3,000 damages, for permitting his house on South Sixth street, opposite the People's Theater, to be used for disorderly purposes, was commenced. The suit of the same plaintiffs against Dr. Henry Van Studdiford, who owns the four-story brick house immediately north of Kleinschmidt's house, has been dismissed upon payment of $100 attorney's fees. Mr. Kleinschmidt and his attorney, C. A. Schnake, arrived promptly, but Mrs. Jennie Wilson, the occupant of Kleinschmidt's house, did not put in an appearance at all. Both Mr. Kleinschmidt and his attorney expressed a determination to fight the case out. In answer to interrogatories by Mr. Herman Mr. Kleinschmidt stated: My name is Francis Theodore Kleinschmidt. I am 49 years of age. Am a retail grocer by occupation, my place of business being at the northwest corner of Seventh and Clark avenue. I live in the western suburbs, at Benton Station. I own the house known as 114 South Sixth street; have owned it since 1863. I lived in it myself at one time. Moved away from it about fourteen years ago. Mrs. Wilson occupied the house at the time the suit of the proprietors of the People's Theater against myself was instituted. She told me she was a married woman. She has occupied the house for about six months. A Mrs. Gardner lived there before Mrs. Wilson moved in. Don't remember how long she lived there; it may have been a year. Can't tell who occupied the house before Mrs. Gardner without consulting my books. I collect the rent from the house myself. The tenants usually bring the money to my store. I don't know of my own knowledge the character of the house kept by Mrs. Wilson. The report is that the house is a disorderly one, but it is as quiet as any other in the neighborhood. Respectable people cannot live in that neighborhood now; not since the days of the social evil law. A gentleman named Abraham Dyson, a wood measurer, was the last respectable person who inhabited my house. He moved away in 1870, I think. He moved away for the same reason that I did myself, because he was annoyed all the time by unsuitable callers. I don't know what kind of house the tenants who came after Dyson kept, but it was rumored that they were houses of ill-repute. I presume that they were. I made efforts to rent the house to respectable people, but could not succeed. I don't recollect the first improper person who kept it. The neighborhood was good until the close of the war. It was as fine a neighborhood as there was in the city; the Miltenbergers, Pendletons and others had their homes there.

The neighborhood deteriorated about the time that the old Southern Hotel was built, and has been bad ever since. I don't know whether the people who lived in my house were better or worse than their neighbors. I don't know whether Mrs. Wilson had any other women in the house besides herself. I saw some women there when I went to collect my rent. I went there once or twice during Mrs. Gardner's tenancy, and saw one or two women in the house at that time. I called usually between 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning.

The questions which elicited the foregoing answers terminated the direct examination. Under cross-examination the witness said: Mrs. Wilson moved out of my house yesterday. She did not have a lease of the place, but rented it from month to month, and I notified her last month to move. I don't know where she has located now. My house is on the east side of Sixth street, between Walnut and Elm streets, and is about thirty feet south of the southern line of the People's Theater. There are no stores or offices in the People's Theater that front my premises. There are no stores or offices on the Sixth street side of the People's Theater that are vacant. Some of the rooms on the Walnut street side are unoccupied. It is reported that there are a great many houses of ill repute on the north side of Walnut street, opposite the theater. I own seventeen feet of ground, upon which is a two-story, six-room brick house that was built a great many years ago, and has small rooms and low ceilings like all old-fashioned houses. There are two windows in the second story looking out upon Sixth street, and only a door and one window on the first floor. I am not the owner of the house adjoining mine on the south side. The improper people who gradually settled in the neighborhood came there because they were tolerated there by the police. I think I was the last landlord to rent my house for improper purposes. I offered it for sale, but could not get anything like value its for it, and so I held on, not caring to give the property away. I claim that I was the victim of circumstances. I was the last property-owner to give way and I am the first to eject my improper tenants. The witness told the story of the banker Runyan, who, shortly after the war, hanged himself in his own house at the southeast corner of Sixth and Walnut streets. Mr. Kleinschmidt stated that he was a defendant a year ago in a similar case to that in which he was testifying, but that case was thrown out of court.

The taking of the witness' deposition took less than an hour, and at its termination the further taking of depositions was adjourned until 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, at which time it is expected that Mrs. Jennie Wilson will testify.

Mr. Kleinschmidt stated at the conclusion of his testimony that he would remodel his house and would rent it out as a tailor-shop. He says he is anxious to have the neighborhood cleared of objectionable inhabitants.

A Levee Rough.

Detectives Warren and Badger of the Third District, arrested Jo. Kinny, this morning. Kinny is one of the numerous levee roughs who are continually giving trouble to the police force. Kinny is supposed to be one of the gang who attempted to rob a store on Seventh and Wash streets about six months' ago, at the time that Officer Walsh was shot in the arm, but as there is no evidence of this character against Kinny, he will be prosecuted for vagrancy in the Second District Police Court to-morrow.

A Big Head.

Officer Carr, of the Central District, is the only officer on the force who has not come out in a new hat. Carr wears a 7⅝ head on his shoulders, and could not find a fit at the store where the police are tiled. A special block will be made for the officer, who in the meantime will have to content himself with an old style stiff hat of the necessary proportions.

[C]AUGHT BY THE COLD.

[Ho]w the Chill Blasts Livened Up the Coal and Clothing Trades.

[G]eneral Effects of the Storm--Delayed Trains and Dull Hotels--The Weather Moderating Slowly.

"The cold snap came on very suddenly," Sergeant Weber remarked to a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning, "but it ought to have come a week sooner. I have not yet overcome my disappointment caused by the clouds' hiding from us the transit of Venus. All the indications gave us strong ground to hope that the clearing up of the weather would occur Wednesday, instead of yesterday, and, as an actual fact there was clear sky all around us. It was very hard luck, and when I think of the splendid preparations which we made in this city to view the transit, I cannot help feeling deeply disappointment. However, I suppose you are here to learn something about the cold weather of to-day rather than the cloudy sky of last Wednesday."

The reporter intimated that that was the object of his visit, and the Signal Service sergeant continued: "Yesterday was the coldest day of the year, which is quite remarkable, considering that the winter is so young. The coldest day previously was January 17, when the thermometer fell to 6.2 above zero. Yesterday the record was 6.2 below, which reading occurred about 10 o'clock in the morning. An interesting feature of the day was the fact that the highest barometrical reading ever recorded here occurred yesterday, which was 30,945, which indicates an extraordinarily high atmospheric pressure."

"How is the outlook?"

"The weather is moderating to-day; the temperature is rising slowly and a snow-storm is a probability. The Western stations this morning all recorded a temperature above zero. In the North and Northeast the record is below zero. The lowest reading reported is at Moorehead, Minn., where the thermometer is standing at seventeen below zero, while at St. Paul it is sixteen below. A southeast wind prevails at both places. The storm is moving east. At Indianapolis this morning the record is ten below zero; while here it was only 1.5 below. Down South they are getting much colder weather than they are accustomed to at this time of year. Vicksburg, Mississippi, reports a temperature of nineteen above zero. This is thirteen degrees below freezing, a degree of cold which is felt very severely in that part of the country."

"When the cold is going to leave us?"

"Yes, the prospects are that we shall soon have a good old-fashioned snow storm."

[illegible] the suddeness with which the cold [illegible] which caused wide discomfort in [illegible]. Last winter, it will be remembered, was an exceptionally mild one and a repetition of its welcome behavior was looked for. Preparations for the keen winds which began sweeping in high latitudes Wednesday evening were by no means general and man and beast suffered accordingly. A rushing business began yesterday in all communities which tend to create and preserve caloric and it is booming to-day.

"Householders held back until the last moment," remarked an Olive street coal-dealer this morning, "but yesterday they come in with a rush. Forty orders were taken in this office between 7 and 9 in the morning."

"The coal-shovellers have reported that the stock of anthracite in the city was short."

"That is not so. We can fill orders right through the winter. We are having all we can attend to however, and nearly every purchaser includes an emergency clause with his order."

At the flannel department of a big dry goods store, one of the clerks, stopping for a moment in his attendance upon an old lady who was fitting out a family of four boys with underclothing, said that the rush for goods had been almost unprecedented. "I sold more red-nosed, shivering customers yesterday than I ever did before in a day. Procrastination is the promoter of lung and throat troubles. Pretty nearly every customer I had was suffering from an incipient cold which an earlier purchase of warm clothes would in all probability have prevented. It is always thus, however. Business in our department never looms up strongly until the first cold snap drives people to invest in comfortable underclothing."

And so it was at the clothing stores where overcoats and warm suits have been having a rushing sale yesterday and to-day; and at the fur stores, where seal-skin luxuries which have lain unnoticed for months were sought eagerly, while at the places where the promise of a warm glow upon a cold day, by means of caloric applied internally, the business done was enormous, the copper kettle steaming all day and the fragrance of foreign stimulant, mixed with lemon, floating upon the air.

It was a very hard day upon the horses. [illegible] Arnot said this morning that he had never in his wide experience known of so many accidents to horses and mules, though he had not heard of any resulting seriously. Procrastination was to blame for this state of affairs also. The precaution of sharpening the horse-shoes is seldom taken until it has been exposed to the danger of such slippery streets as prevailed yesterday, and it is more by good luck than otherwise that the death of a number of fine horses did not occur, as several well-known roadsters came to grief but were extricated from danger before suffering harm. Another feature of the day upon the street was the frequency with which axles were broken. A large number of vehicles have a weak spot in the axle and the sudden frost decreasing iron's ability to stand a jar, the consequence was a phenomenal number of breakdowns. Nearly every street this morning had its wrecked wagon lying upon one side against the sidewalk, and even a ponderous and stoutly built street-car is to be seen lurched over beside the track with the company blacksmith diagnosing its surgical case and removing the fractured iron from beneath it.

INCOMING TRAINS RETARDED.

The bulletin board at the Union Depot yesterday and this morning was a condensed and definite showing of the effects of this cold snap on the railroads. In the place of the usual "on time" marked opposite the several trains coming into the depot was [illegible] "Abandoned," "Three hours late," "No report," etc. The time of delay was not, in any case reported, made any too large, and in most cases was about half of the real time of delay, owing to the delay in running between the place reported from and his city. The snap was so sudden and unexpected that no one was prepared for it, and as a consequence the delays yesterday were greater than those during the night, but the [illegible] this morning again relapsed into the [illegible] of long delays. No. 47 Wabash, from the East was "abandoned" and left for the second section of No. 43 to bring in, and the other Wabash trains making Eastern or Western connections, were from three to eight hours late. The Wabash due yesterday morning at 8:30 did not get in until early 7 last night. Last night's Vandalia did not get in until this morning. The C. & [illegible] last night and this morning was on time or nearly so, but it has no Eastern connections to make. This delay is perhaps felt more in the mail department than any other from the arrangements that are made for the dispatch of these mails. Both the day and night men do not have the work of certain hours to do, but have certain mails to attend to, and when the mails are delayed these men must wait for them, and thus their time of work has been considerably lengthened. Mr. [illegible]ehimer, the local agent at the Union Depot, said this morning that not one mail scarcely during the past 36 hours had been on time, many of them twelve hours behind, and that there was a good deal of inconvenience and added annoyance caused thereby. Any inquiry at the telegraph offices as to delays discovers an amount of ignorance remarkable to contemplate, and the wonder is that the innocent fellows have brains enough to tip a key or write an order.

DULL AT THE HOTELS.

The effect produced by the weather upon travel is reflected upon the hotel registers, which show a large diminished number of guests this morning. Yesterday the decrease was not so marked. Though the trains were delayed they brought in their quota of transients at last. To-day, however, it is evident that the cold has deterred many from venturing abroad, and the prospect of a snow storm may still keep the timid travelers at home for a day or two. This will make travel all the heavier during the coming week, which may be looked forward to as likely to be one of the liveliest holiday season weeks ever enjoyed in this city. Such a storm as is just being recovered from does not prevent travel and business; it only retards it, and the dullness is invariably followed by a rush which keeps things lively for a season.

The Cold Elsewhere.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—Late Wednesday night an intensely cold wave rose in the Northwest States and started on its travels eastward reaching New York about mid-day yesterday, when the mercury began to sink and it continued its downward course until by evening freezing point was passed. The wind, which at daybreak had a velocity of twelve miles an hour, by noon had developed into a strong gale and storm signals were hoisted to the top of the Equitable buildings. At the Signal Service Bureau the officers say it was one of the most remarkable changes they have ever noted.

CLEAR AND COLD.

NEW YORK, December 8.—Weather clear and cold. Thermometer 0 at sunrise.

THE COLD IN NEW YORK.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—After a brief period of mild weather there was a sudden fall of the temperatuie yesterday, which took everybody by surprise. During the morning and until late in the afternoon the sky was overcast and threatened rain or snow. As the sun sank in the west, however, the clouds were dispelled, the air became more dry, the wind increased in velocity and the mercury fell rapidly.

CREWS SUFFERING TERRIBLY.

CHICAGO, December 8.—The crew arriving yesterday in the Breakwater were badly frosted. Two vessels come into the harbor completely covered with ice. The crews nearly perished, having their ears and hands and feet frozen. Most of the trains due here yesterday and last night were from a half an hour to twelve hours behind time, and many freights were abandoned on account of the snow. No impediments are reported, but the roads had much difficulty in making steam enough and in preventing the water from freezing in the tanks. No accidents are yet reported, however.

Superintendent Gale, of the I. & St. L., was in Indianapolis yesterday.

The Union Depot thermometer said 4° below zero this morning at 7 o'clock.

Col. Hill, of the "Van," returned this morning from a three-days business trip to Indianapolis.

B. W. McCullough, Assistant General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Missouri Pacific at Marshall, Tex., came in this morning.

Richard Orlopp has been appointed general yardmaster of the I. & St. L. Road at East St. Louis, Alton Junction and intervening points.

The heater in one of the Pullman cars standing in the Union Depot burst yesterday and scattered things pretty generally. The damage was only slight and no one was injured.

W. D. Slack, general land commissioner of the L. R. & Ft. S. Road, has telegraphed Mr. J. N. Eberle, the land and passenger agent of his road, that he will be in St. Louis tomorrow on business for his road.

John N. Eberle, Land and Passenger Agent of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad, yesterday received a magnificent sign, advertising his road and its vast acres of farming and timber lands. The sign was executed in Little Rock, and is as fine a specimen of the artists' work as any even this city can produce.

The facilities for heating the gentlemen's waiting-room at the Union Depot are inadequate entirely for the demands of such weather as that of the past two days. There are but two heaters in the large room, and these are constantly surrounded by those who are chronically cold, so that those who really ought to have access to them are compelled to stand off and warm up on faith. Let some improvement in this matter be made.

A Wabash man, who yesterday came over from St. Louis, states that it is as good as decided that A. C. Bird, general freight agent, will take a similar position on the Chicago, St. Paul & Milwaukee road, and further that the slate now is that Mr. Knight, first assistant general freight agent, will succeed Mr. Bird as general freight agent of the Wabash. C. I. Wellington, assistant general freight agent, will be made first assistant general freight agent, and George Cook, chief clerk of A. C. Bird, will be promoted to assistant general freight agent.—[Indianapolis Journal.

The C. B. & Q. has just issued for distribution to patrons a roller county map of the entire United States and part of Mexico. The C. B. & Q. system is of course the most conspicuous object indicated on the map, but every railroad in the Union is shown plainly. In connection with the journal issued by the same road this map makes a most complete guide to the roads of the West. The Journal besides including all the features of the ordinary folder and time schedule is a complete dictionary, alphabetically indexed, of all the places, large or small, reached by the C. B. & Q.

Col. E. P. Buell, vice-president, general manager and chief engineer of the Toledo, Texas and Rio Grande Narrow Gauge Railway, came in from Flora, Ill., his headquarters, last night. The road which Col. Buell is representing was incorporated only last August, with a capital stock of $2,500,000, and as projected, is to run from Metcalf, Ills., a point on the T., C., St. L. & C., to Cairo, Ills., a distance of 190 miles, there to connect with the Paramore system for Texas and Rio Grande points. Although incorporated but four months ago, wonderful energy in pushing the project has been evinced. Last Monday Col. Buell contracted for 143 miles of the road—that from Metcalf to Benton, Ill.,—the road over that distance having been located and the right of way secured. The other fifty miles of road is now being located, right of way secured, and before the year is out will be contracted for, the object being to have the entire line in running order during 1883. Although the stocks and bonds of this line, a most important link in the rapidly - growing Narrow Gauge system of the middle west, are to be placed in much the same hands as those controlling the I. C., St. L. & C., and operated in conjunction with that system, yet it will be under an entirely different and independent management, and conducted solely in the interests of the vast and fertile country through which it is to run. Col. Buell leaves to-night for his home.

A NOON BLAZE.

$25,000 Fire on Main, Between Pine and Olive.

Dent G. Tutt & Co. and E. A. Hitchcock the Chief Sufferers--The Loss Covered by Insurance.

Just when or just how the fire originated that gutted the store of Dent G. Tutt & Co. at 204 North Main street shortly after noon to-day, has not yet been settled. Those in the neighborhood claim that the fire had been burning for quite a while before the alarm was turned on, which was done about a quarter to 1 o'clock. Almost as soon as the bells sounded a dense crowd filled up Main street, and there was a good deal of unavoidable delay before the streams were got on the fire. The fire originated in the third story of the building, where there was collected a great deal of general merchandise and some lard and highwines. The blaze broke out of the windows in heavy streams of flame, which seemed for a time to threaten the destruction of the whole block. Just north of the store of Dent G. Tutt & Co. is the flour and produce store of Meyer, Aronson & Co., which was not damaged at all. South of 204, however, at 202 North Main street, is the paper warehouse and book bindery of Rankin & Lawton, which received a severe scorching. In the top story of the book bindery some forty girls were at work when the fire broke out, and the first notice they had of it was a heavy volume of dense, greasy smoke, which swept through a hatchway at the rear and filled the whole room. The girls were badly scared, and the scene for a moment or two was indescribable. Without taking time to secure their bonnets or shawls, they made a wild, panicky rush for the statrway, and came tumbling down in inextricable confusion. For a wonder nobody was hurt, and the girls, as soon as their scare was over, became interested spectators of the blaze. Mr. Tutt informed a reporter that the value of the stock at present in the store was not over $25,000, on which there was insurance for $20,000 in the Capen Agency. Had the fire taken place a short time since it would have caught the firm with fully $75,000 worth of goods in the store. The loss will not be total on the goods; probably not more than ten or fifteen thousand dollars. The loss on the building, which is the property of Mr. E. A. Hitchcock, will probably amount to $10,000 more, fully covered by insurance. The stock carried by Rankin & Lawton, 202 N. Main, was estimated by Mr. Rankin at about $20,000, on which there is insurance in the King Agency for $18,000. Mr. Rankin does not believe that anything has burned on his upper floors, but thinks that the damage from smoke will be almost, if not quite, as bad as if the white paper had burned. One very large job was just in progress in the building, and this he reckons a total loss. The building occupied by Rankin & Lawton belongs to the Clemens estate, and is not damaged materially. The whole loss may be summed up: Dent G. Tutt & Co., $10,000; E. A. Hitchcock, $10,000; Rankin & Lawton, $5,000; total, $25,000, all covered by insurance. The Salvage Corps and the whole department were complimented on all sides for the excellence and effectiveness of their work. The fire was brought under control in twenty minutes after the arrival of the engines, although the alarm was not turned on until the fire was under full headway.

IN THE REAR.

The fire was gallantly attacked from the alley in the rear, where the evidence that the flames had been burning for some time before discovery seemed to be provided in the condition of the iron shutters in the windows of the top story of the building, which were bent into curves by the heat. The flames poured forth from the upper windows with great fury and leaped almost across the alley to the buildings on its eastern side. The rear wall of the building is five stories in height and the ladder was placed so that the fourth story was reached by the firemen. By the time this was done the upper floor was wholly occupied by the flames, which also began to rush out from the windows of the story below. At 1 o'clock a stream was supplied at the fourth floor which soon mastered the fire, and a few minutes afterwards another was carried from the alley to the roof. It shortly became evident then that the fire was under control, and that all danger of the ignition of the buildings upon the east side of the alley was past.

NOVEMBER CORN ARBITRATION.

The Case Proceeding Before a Special Committee.

The November corn arbitration between Grier Bros. and Boyd & Hull was commenced yesterday afternoon before a special committee, composed of E. O. Stanard, Thomas Richeson and John Wahl. Before the case was opened an informal discussion between the parties interested developed the fact that the other shorts would not abide by the decision of the committee, and would only go into an arbitration if they were allowed a lawyer to conduct their case. Mr. P. P. Connor openly admitted, for himself and the other shorts, that they did not feel themselves competent to conduct their own case against such an able opponent as D. P. Grier. The committee did not feel willing to go on with the case if the shorts were not to be governed by the decision they should arrive at, and for a while it looked as though there would be a dead-lock, but Gen. Grier settled the matter by stating that if all the shorts would agree to abide by the decision of the committee, subject only to an appeal to the Board of Directors, whose decision should be final, that he would not alone allow the shorts to introduce all such evidence as they had prepared, but would also give them the privilege of a lawyer to conduct their case. This very generous proposition of Gen. Grier's was accepted by the shorts; indeed they could hardly do otherwise. The case was then proceeded with, Gen. Grier conducting his own side, and P. D. Dyer appearing for the shorts. It was believed by all those present at the arbitration that Gen. Grier would not alone hold his own with Mr. Dyer, but would even hold an advantage over him through his thorough knowledge of his own case and his practical business sense, and this belief was strengthened by the sound, sensible arguments used by Gen. Grier during the opening discussion, and also the able manner with which he handled his case. The taking of evidence was resumed this afternoon.

The McCord Case.

Judge Adams this morning in Circuit Court No. 1 called up the case of Hercules against Mary Alice McCord, on the motion for alimony. Some notoriety attaches to this divorce proceeding, the particulars of which have been published in the East. McCord is the local agent of the Pennsylvania Salt Works and a man of considerable property. He was married at Allegheny City, Pa., in June, 1872. The couple resided here. In October last he filed a petition for divorce on the ground of infidelity. He made specific allegations against his wife and in support of the charges of improper conduct with certain parties, and with one in particular, depositions have been filed. An answer has been filed by James M. Lewis in behalf of Mrs. McCord. She denies her husband's serious allegations and avers that he did not treat her with kindness at all times, but that he chose to make their home here in boarding-houses and amidst uncongenial associations. Mrs. McCord alleges that she was compelled to endure many discomforts and annoyances and to be come acquainted with people who were often very disagreeable. She states that on account of her husband's inattention to her comfort and welfare she was often forced to find such enjoyment as a boarding-house and its inmates would afford, and her husband, when at home, found his own entertainment in reading to himself, and in other ways he withheld his love and sympathy from her. Mrs. McCord alleges that if there was any seeming impropriety in her actions at boarding houses it was due to the influence of narcotics and stimulants, prescribed by her physician. Mr. McCord alleges that she went on to Pittsburg to visit her mother, and afterwards she went to Cohasset, Mass., on a visit to her sister. She denies the story of a planned elopement and altogether denies the allegations of improper relations. Judge Adams heard evidence this morning as to the means of Mr. McCord to provide alimony for his wife and child. He has a salary of $2,500 per annum and his wife alleged that he possessed property of the value of $25,000 to $40,000. Mr. McCord stated that his property was probably worth $15,000. The court ordered payment of $125 for the purpose of defending the suit and $75 a month alimony. It was stated that McCord had been remitting his wife $100 per month since her departure from St. Louis. Judge Phillips represented Mr. McCord.

MIKE THE BOOTBLACK.

How He was Forced Off the Exchange Floor.

For the past four years the Merchants Exchange directors have allowed a little fellow the privilege of coming on the floor during stated hours in the forenoon for the purpose of blacking such members' boots as wished them cleaned. The boy, known to the members only as Mike, a bright manly little fellow, always respectful and, indeed, gentlemanly in his manners, picked up perhaps, a dollar or so a day, with which he helped support a mother and younger sister. This morning when he came around as usual to perform his daily work he was refused access to the floor. A bootblack stand with chair had been put in the hall by some one's orders and a full-grown colored man had it in charge, ready to black the members' boots at a nickle a head. Poor Mike could not at first believe that he had been forced from the floor and the little sum he had honestly worked for each day refused him by such a great and rich body as the Merchants' Exchange, but when he fully realized that such was the case the poor little fellow burst into tears and went away crying bitterly. When the members heard of what had been done they expressed great indignation and a petition was drawn up requesting the Board of Directors to allow Mike once more the privilege of the floor. Within a very short time this petition received the signatures of a large number of the members. Not alone is there a determination expressed of getting Mike back on the floor, but it is proposed by some to subscribe enough money to purchase him a chair and fine kit of blacking-brushes and boxes with which he will be able to compete with the Merchants' Exchange bootblack.

TWENTY WORDS FOR TEN CENTS IN OUR WANT COLUMNS.

THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION.

A Feast of Special Sanctity--The Vicar-General's Silver Jubilee.

On this, the eighth day of December, the Catholic Church celebrates one of the greatest festivals in its calendar, the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin. The history of this feast goes back to the twelfth century, when the canons of Lyons, in the South of France, introduced the festival on the 8th of December. The belief in the immaculate conception was not at that time a dogma of the church, but a pious opinion, and it was the "subtle doctor." Duns Scotus, who made the doctrine one of the cardinal points in the creed of the Franciscans, and for a long time the matter was debated between them and the Dominicans. Tee Jesuits subsequently took up the debate and conducted it with such vigor that on the 8th of Deeember the bull "Ineffabilis Deus" was promulgated in the Church of St. Peter, at Rome, by the Pope Pius IX., in the presence of two hundred members of the great hierarchy of the Church, which declared "that the most blessed Virgin Mary, in the first moment of conception by a special grace and privilege of Almighty God, was preserved immaculate from all stain of original sin." Previous to this the Pope had, by an encyclical of February 2, 1849, invited the opinion of the Catholic bishops upon the subject and received more than six hundred affirmative answers, four dissented from the Pope's view, and fifty-two, while agreeing with him on the truth of the dogma, deemed it inopportune to define and proclaim it. Since that time the observance of the festival became even more general than it had been before, In the United States, where our Lady of the Immaculate Conception has been solemnly declared, by the church the saintly patroness of the Republic, the day is most strictly observed in all Catholic churches. In St. Louis low and high masses were said just as on Sunday, and at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, on Jefferson avenue and Locust street, the services were peculiarly impressive and solemn. Rev. Father O'Reilly was celebrant at the high mass, and the church was filled with a congregation which had gathered not alone from his own but from the neighboring parishes. At St. John's Church high mass was celebrated at 8 o'clock and the devotion of forty hours exposition of the blessed sacrament, and at St. Bridget's Church there were special services and an unusually large number of communicants, and at the different convents, particularly at the Sacred Heart, the day was observed with all the solemn rites of a peculiarly religious festival.

At St. Mary's Church to-day was celebrated the silver jubilee of the very reverend Vicar-General of the Arch diocese of St. Louis, Father Henry Muehlsiepen, who was ordained a priest on the feast of the Immaculate Conception December 8, 1857, by Archbishop Kenrick in the Cathedral. Father Muehlsiepen has long been one of the most prominent clergymen in St. Louis, the whole care of the German Catholic flock in this See having fallen to his hands. He was constituted Vicar-General June 25, 1868, and has been forward in every Catholic enterprise since. He was one of the founders of the Amerika newspaper, and is now one of the editors of the Herold des Glaubens. The services at St. Mary's Church include the presentation of an address by Mr. Druhe and a gift of money by Mr. Heimbacher, in the name of the German Catholics. On December 13 the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Vicar-General's first mass will also be celebrated at St. Mary's; solemu high mass will be offered up at 8 o'clock, and all the German priests of St. Louis will be present.

The Last of the Mohegans.

Norwich Cor. of New York Sun.

Samuel L. Brushel, who was the only lineal descendant of the great Chieftain Uncas, of the Mohegan Indians, the most powerful tribe in Connecticut, died at his home in Norwichtown at noon yesterday. It is positively shown in Indian annals that "Sam," as he was generally called, was not only of royal blood, but that it was untainted by mixture with that of other races. His death was the result of injuries received a few weeks ago in falling from an apple-tree which he was pruning. American "fire-water" was the indirect agent. Brushel was simple-minded and queer, but he possessed some musical talent. He was a natural musician, possessing a remarkably fine ear. He could whistle half a dozen different tunes at the same time, and for years he had been an object of much curiosity and interest at the New London county fairs on account of his skill in shooting arrows at pieces of silver from a long distance. Whenever he knocked the coin out of the top of the split stick in which it had been placed by the owner, he was entitled to put it in his pocket. At these shooting matches he was always clothed in the full marial or holiday toggery befitting the descendant of a Mohegan king. He was 37 years old. His remains were buried in a plain coffin from the chapel of the First Norwichtown Congregational Church at 2 p. m. to-day. Before his death he requested that he be accorded a burial befitting his rank in the Indian tribe. His funeral was attended by the survivers of the Mohegan tribe, who inhabit a reservation on the banks of the Thames River, a few miles below the city. The Rev. Mr. Wetzel, pastor of the First Church, preached an appropriate sermon. A small body of mourners accompanied the remains through a blinding snow-stom to the burial-place. Brushel leaves a widow.

"Fweddy" Gebhart.

Boston Special to the Chicago Tribune.

He had met Mrs. Langtry at a dinner in New York, and gave her her first sleighride there. Now he walks with her afternoons. If there were anything wrong, say the people at the theater and the hotel, it could not escape the vigilant watch of the females who are always with the Jersey Lily, and the scandal would at once become public property. This is actually all there is to the innuendoes that have so glibly passed along. The worst that is said of young Mr. Gebhart, the dashing stock broker whom Mrs. Labouchère so emphatically disapproves of, is that he keeps a stable of race-horses; is more familiar with the betting-book than the spelling-book; since he addressed Mrs. Langtry as "My Dear Friend," and begged her acceptance of a basket of "frut"; that he was a year ago the affianced of Miss Leonie Jerome, but is so no longer; and that he made and won a bet of $5,000 that he would "fascinate" the English beauty on her arrival here, although he had never seen her and knew of no means of becoming acquainted with her.

THE DORRISS WILL.

Russell Brown Disinherited and to be a Total Stranger.

The Amounts Left the Other Children—Provisions of the Will.

The will of Gen. George P. Dorriss, bearing date February 14, 1882, and the codicil bearing date August 30, 1882, were admitted to probate this afternoon. The witnesses are Hon. Albert Todd and William Thompson, of the Boatmen's Bank. The testator directs as follows:

"Whatever I shall have given to any of my children or grandchildren before my death I declare to be an absolute gift and not an advancement. I have conveyed to my daughter, Annie Halderman, the property on the south-east corner of Olive and Fourteenth streets, three houses; also house No. 1105 Olive Street, Dorriss' Row. To each of her children living at the time of my death I give as follows: The eldest child $2,000; to each of the other two now living two $1,000 second mortgage bonds of the Iron Mountain Railroad bearing seven per cent interest; to be kept by trustees who shall collect the interest and reinvest, and the bonds shall be delivered when the children come of age. I give to Dorriss Brown $2,000. I do not give anything to Mattie Mosher and Fannie Brown, daughters of my daughter Mattie, because I have give to each of them a farm of the value of $2,000. Having by my will provided for each of those of inheritable blood from me, and in my judgment worthy of my recognition, I hereby declare it to be a condition of every gift of my will that the donee and devisee shall not have the same, if he or she shall attempt to defeat the operation of my will in any respect, and such party shall forfeit every benefit under the will. I hereby forgive every indebtedness to me at the time of my death from each of the legatees and devisees under my will. I discharge them from payment thereof, and direct that all evidences of debt shall be cancelled. I devise to Rufus J. Lackland and Samuel N. Holliday, in trust, the following property: the house and ground No. 1107 Olive street and the house and ground No. 1117 Olive street. The property is to be rented advantageously and the income given to my son Thomas during his natural life. At his death the trustees are to hold the property for the benefit of his children. If none survive him the children of Annie Halderman and Mattie Wisker are to share it, exclusive, however, of Russel Brown, who shall be excluded from any benefit from said property.

I also devise to the same trustees the houses Nos. 1111 and 1113 Olive street, the income to be given one-half to Mattie Wisker during her natural life and the other half to her children, exclusive, however, of Russel Brown, and upon her death to hold the same for the absolute benefit of her children, exclusive, however, of said Russell Brown. All the remainder of my estate at the time of my death, real, mixed, personal, money, stocks, bonds, notes etc., I devise to the trustees aforesaid for the following purposes: Every part of the real estate remaining unsold is to be sold at private or public sale upon terms as they shall deem fit, provided, however, that for deferred payments they shall take notes secured by deeds of trust on the property sold. The property is to be sold from time to time as the trustees shall think proper. The personalty is to be converted into money and to invest all moneys coming into their hands after payment of debts in United States bonds. Every three months the money produced by interest, rents and dividends shall be paid as follows: To my son Thomas and my daughters Mattie and Annie each one third. If my son Thomas should die, leaving no widow or descendants, then my daughters each one half. If either of them should die, one half the share shall pass to the survivor and the other half to the descendants. If both should die, one half shall go to the descendants of each respectively. The benefits, however, shall not extend to Russell Brown. He shall not share at all in the benefits of any provision; nor shall he have, take or enjoy any of my estate, and in its division, administration and distribution he or his descendants shall not be considered as entitled therein in the least degree, either directly or by or through either of my children, or any or all of them, or the descendants of them. He shall be regarded as a total stranger to me, of no inheritable blood from me, and in the line of descent I declare him absolutely disinherited. If my son Thomas should die one-third of his share shall go to his widow, to cease upon her remarriage, and the remainder to his descendants. If he should leave no descendants the descendants of Mattie Wisker and Annie Halderman shall share his interest, exclusive, however, of Russell Brown. The railroad bonds shall not be sold unless it is manifest that payment at maturity is uncertain. The trustees are to be compensated for their services as administrators. The residue of the estate not disposed of by the will at the time of my death I give to the grandchildren, exclusive, however, of Russell Brown.

The codicil directs that the property No. 1101 Olive street shall pass to Mrs. Annie B. Halderman in trust for the benefit of her three children, Sallie, Georgie and Anna. The legacy of $2,000 to the grandson Dorriss Brown is revoked. The estate is probably worth half a million dollars.

A CURIOUS CRIME.

A Young Man on Trial for Breaking up a Family.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, December 8.—At the Yorkville Court yesterday, Albert Koepplin, a waiter, was committed for trial on a charge of interfering with the domestic happiness of the Renter family at 454 West Forty-fifth street, by means of an anonymous letter. Renter, on receipt of the letter quarrelled with his wife, who protested her innocence, and then paid a visit to her father. The story had preceded her, however, and the father told her if the charges were true he wanted to have nothing more to do with her. Koepplin was suspected to have been the writer of the letter, and on being accused, he admitted the charge.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, December 8.—The business failures for the last seven days reported to R. G. Dun & Co., of the Mercantile Agency, number 190, of which 165 occurred in the country and 25 in New York city and Canada. This is the largest number reported during the year 1882 in any one week. The Eastern States had nineteen, Western 62, Southern 42, Middle 31, Pacific States and Territories 11, Canada 15 and New York City 10. The principal failures in the city were L. Hart & Co., metals; Blevin & Tieber, cigars, and William Sherwood & Co., leather commission; in the country J. L. J. VERNE'S STORY.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

"We are now in longitude 120 degrees fifteen minutes, and latitude eighty-three degrees thirty-five minutes," said the doctor.

"Yes," said the captain.

"We have yet 17,852 miles, twenty yards, fifteen feet and nine inches of ice to cross before we reach our ship," said the doctor.

"Exactly," said the captain.

"In that case, it is time we were off," said Hatteras.

"We have left from the explosion 2,000 pounds of roast turkey, fourteen kegs of baked beans and eleven gallons of apple-jack," said the boatswain.

"Pack 'em on the sledge at once," said the captain.

"And how long will our provisions hold out?" asked the doctor.

"The apple jack will probably last until morning," said the American.

"And after that?"

"We shall have to send to New Jersey for more."

"But how?"

"Leave that to me," said the American.

"How is the temperature?" asked the captain.

"One hundred and ten below zero."

"Good. Hand me my ear muffs. Are we ready?"

"We are," said his companions.

"To the north!" cried the captain, executing a song and dance and kicking a Polar bear off an iceberg.

"To the north!!" shouted his companions.

CHAPTER SECOND.

"All is not yet lost," said the captain. "I have just taken an observation. We have yet a few thousand miles to go. Shall we push on gentlemen?"

"We shall," cried his companions.

"We are down to our last drink," sighed the American. "But I have telephoned to Jersey City for a fresh supply. If it arrives in time we are saved. There is not cold enough in the Arctic regions to stand up against Jersey City whisky."

"We have not eaten anything for seven weeks," said the doctor.

"But shall we turn back for trifles?" asked Hatteras. "Doctor, you must have a plan. Has your science gone back on you at this critical moment?"

"Give me two weeks in which to think over our situation," said the doctor, seating himself on a cake of ice and falling into a brown study.

"Bears!" said the boatswain.

"Where?" asked the captain, excitedly.

"They have been at our heels for the last two months," said the boatswain.

"The apple-jack," said the doctor.

"Magnificent!" said the captain.

"One sip and they are at our mercy," said the boatswain.

"Saved!" said his companions.

CHAPTER THIRD.

"We have now occupied this scooped out iceberg for three years," said the doctor.

"And there has been a monotony about our existence which does not agree with my love of excitement," said the American.

"You forget the whist," said the captain.

"You know I always prefer poker," said the American.

"It is simply a national prejudice," said the captain.

"Gentlemen, you will not quarrel with the temperature 200 below zero," said the doctor. "Remember we are now 3,000 miles from the Pole. Save your breath for our final effort."

"We will," said the captain, shaking the hand of the American and setting up the blubber oil for the crowd.

CHAPTER FOURTH.

"We seem to be drifting into a seething whirlpool," said the captain.

"Yes, if we keep on this course five minutes longer we shall probably all be lost," said the doctor. "Let us take an observation," and he went forward with his instrument while the frail boat on which they were sailing whirled around at the rate of two thousand revolutions a minute, and then suddenly shot out at right angles as though fired from a hundred-ton gun.

"A narrow escape," said the doctor, quietly pocketing his glass and venturing aft.

"How long is it since we lost the American overboard?" asked the boatswain.

"About four months," said the doctor.

"We are now close upon the Pole," said Hatteras.

"As near as I can make out that must be over there, said the doctor.

"You are right," said the captain. "To England shall belong the glory of its discovery."

"But it has a strange look," said the doctor, gazing through his glass. "Perhaps it's the fault of the Polar Sea atmosphere."

"It is covered with stripes," cried the captain, pulling his hair and leaping ashore as the boat grounded upon the beach.

"Can it be that dastardly Yankee has—"

"Shave, gentlemen?" asked the American, stepping out of his barbershop at the base of the North Pole.

"He has," yelled the English captain, as he proceeded without delay to go insane.

MAJOR MOORE'S DISCOVERY.

How One of Gov. Brown's Miners Became the Richest Man in the South.

Atlanta Correspondence of the New York Sun.

The administration of Gov. Colquitt closed with an act characteristic of Georgia. A few minutes before Gov. Stephens' inauguration Major A. H. Moore, of Forsyth county, Georgia, visited Gov. Colquitt, in company with an English mining expert, to secure the Governor's signature to a deed from Major A. H. Moore to a syndicate of English capitalists of four hundred acres of land lying in Forsyth county, Ga., guaranteed to contain a gold mine. The consideration was £1,000,000, or $5,000,000.

Major Moore was a Confederate soldier, and during the campaign in North Georgia studied the gold fields more intently than stratagems of war. He knew something of metallurgy and gold mining, and became satisfied that these gold fields were the richest in the United States. After the war he became an expert in the metallurgy of gold ores at Jersey City, and returned to investigate the fields of North Georgia. He found the ores the richest he had ever known, but so impregnated with sulphur as to be impracticable for mining. He spent $10,000 experimenting in mining on the Chattahoochee River. Becoming discouraged with the methods of mining used, he ceased his work and bought options in land containing gold, and began experimenting in processes to desulphurize the gold ore. About this time he met an inventor, Mr. S. W. Bullock, who, like himself, had lost his all in experiments and inventions. A "fellow-feelin" drew the two experimentors together, and they agreed to unite their means and interest in discovering some means to desulphurize the rich Georgia ores. They spent long years of toil and $75,000 and had just succeeded in a process which put the mines Major Moore owned on a paying basis when Mr. Bullock, the chief experimentor, died. Half the time Major Moore was a bankrupt, but held on to a few mines and bought options on other lands, often, however, being compelled to sell a mine to continue operations. After Mr. Bullock's death Major Moore associated himself with Dr. Frederick Charles, a graduate of a college of mining engineers in Bavaria. Like Major Moore, he had come to the South during the war and had become interested in her minerals, especially her gold ores, and had for years been experimenting in mining in North Carolina and Georgia. Major Moore gave him the results of Mr. Bullock's experiments in desulphurizing gold ore, and in a short time the German had discovered a process by means of electricity and silver cloths of desulphurizing gold ores to a fine assay. The process was immediately patented and Maj. Moore began its use in the McDonough and Franklin mines, owned by Philadelphia capitalists and Major Moore. The value of these mines has increased immensely since the Charles process has been applied. Before they were estimated at half a million, and now at $10,000,000, and no stock for sale. This Charles process has been tried only about eight months, and in the spring of this year Maj. Moore met an Englishman, a Mr. Butterfield, in New York, who was seeking investment in gold mines in this country for a syndicate of his countrymen. The result of the meeting was that the Englishman became so well satisfied with the prospect that his company have now signed the agreement mentioned above. Maj. Moore is now the richest man in the South, for, besides this English money, paid in $5,000 bank notes, he owns interests in many other mines, which he proposes to develop by the Charles process.

Major Moore once worked in a coal mine owned by Senator Joe Brown. Now he can buy out the Senator several times over. He proposes to make Georgia and Atlanta his home, and to further develop the mineral resources of Georgia. He says there are millions in the marble quarries of Pickens and Gilmer counties. In one mine now worked by Major Moore the dam has been built of gold-bearing rock ore because no other kind could be found, and Major Moore and the English expert say the supply is inexhaustible. At one opening alone there is exposed 4,000,000 tons of ore. This ore, even by the old process, is valued at $20 a ton. All of north Georgia is literally a vast gold field, only waiting the Charles process of desulphurizing the ores to pour its golden streams in plenty over our old red hills.

LAWYER KER'S PROPHECY.

The Probable Annexation of Mexico and Canada.

From the Philadelphia Record.

The next vital question to divide political parties in this country, says Assistant United States Attorney-General Ker, will be the expediency of annexing Mexico. In comparison with the importance of this subject he declares that the disputes on questions of civil service reform, internal revenue and the tariff laws will sink into insignificance. At present Mr. Ker can see no vital question dividing the Republican and Democratic parties, and it is this absence of a bone of contention that will hasten a dispute.

But the leading cause to bring about this result is the increasing commercial interest taken by Americans in Mexican affairs. The investment of American capital in Mexican railroads has already awakened an interest among business men in the affairs of that country, and Mr. Ker expects to see leading commercial men from the Northern States engage in active trade with the people across the border. The resources of Mexico have only recently become known to the people of this country. Mr. Ker believes our financial interest in that country will ultimately lead to a demand for its annexation.

It is not on business interests alone that the lawyer depends for the fulfillment of his prophecy. He declares that the history of the Republic clearly shows a course of aggrandizement that cannot be checked until the American flag floats over every square mile of territory in North America. This national idea, Mr. Ker declares, has been the guiding star of every Administration since Washington was President, and as illustrations of this he cites the acquisition of Florida, Louisiana, Texas, California and Alaska from the Spanish, French, Mexican and Russian Governments.

Again, Mr. Ker depends on the spirit of discontent which a quarter century of peace will breed among the masses to work a sentiment in favor of war. Population is now increasing so fast, and there is such difficulty in finding employment for all, that a war will be needed to kill off the surplus population.

That Ex-Secretary Blaine favors this scheme is declared to be an open secret among Washington politicians. The ex-Secretary's intervention in the Chili-Peru controversy is cited as proof of his earnestness in the question. This is declared to have been the first step in a plan for embroiling the Government in hostilities with the two South American Republics in order to make American influence paramount on the Southern continent. Once the Government became engaged in war with a South American Power, or should the commercial supremacy of America become established among the South American Governments, the people of this country would recognize the importance of possessing Mexico, and demand the annexation of that country.

The completion of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Panama will make it imperative to the integrity of the American Government that the United States should control all the country between the present frontier and the canal. When that day is reached there will be prospects of a thriving American trade in that part of South America lying along the Pacific coast, and following this the American flag will be as much respected on the summits of the Andes, in the valley of the Amazon and at the Horn as it is in sight of the Capitol dome.

Mr. Ker expects to see American inflence made paramount not only in a southerly direction but in the North also, as Canada will be obliged in course of time to seek annexation for protection. It is impossible, he says, for a weak and isolated people like the Canadians will be, after separation from England, to thrive beside a powerful nation like the United States, and its absorption as an integral part of the Government is, therefore, imperative. Then will America and the United States become coextensive.

TEXAS TOPICS.

The Texas Legislature meets on Tuesday, January 9, 1883.

It is now highly probable that the International Railroad will soon be extended beyond Columbia to the town of Brazorio, which is situated eight miles lower down the Brazos River.

The authorities at Brenham are determined to put down the roughs and rowdies who have for so long attempted unsuccessfully to take charge of the town, and the City Marshal has offered a reward of $10 for information leading to the arrest of any one discharging firearms within the city limits.

The cotton crop of Texas was put down at 1,000,400 bales before the recent frost and the corn crop was estimated at 25,000,000 bushels. These figures will be slightly reduced, but there will not be any material change made, and it can be claimed truthfully that Texas is the leading agricultural State in the South.

It is stated on pretty good authority that one-fourth of the cotton crop of this State still remains in the field. The recent rains did no very great damage to cotton already opened, but the frost that followed killed nearly all unopened bolls. Cotton picking and marketing has been completely checked for several days past.

Parties from West Texas report that the plains west of Big Springs along the line of the Texas and Pacific Railway are literally covered with antelope. It is supposed that they have been driven from the Panhandle, the Indian Territory and the mountains of New Mexico by the sudden cold weather and severe snow-storms.

A party of Jefferson capitalists have offered to purchase $60,000 worth of stock in the Marshall and Northwestern Railroad for the privilege of tapping the road some fifteen miles from Marshall. The proposition has been very favorably received by the managers of the Marshall Railroad, and it is highly probable that it will be accepted.

Oscar L. Holmes, of Nacogdoches, Texas, who died many years ago, left part of his estate to the State of Texas, to be devoted to the aid and maintainance of persons wounded while fighting for the Confederacy. By legislative enactment, March, 1875, F. P. Edwards, Milton East and J. N. Massey were appointed trustees of this property. The heirs of Holmes, living in New York, have brought suit for this property, and pray for partition. A force of lawyers from Terrell have just filed the case in the court of Dallas county.

SAND-HILLERS.

Realistic Description of South Carolina's White Trash.

Columbia Correspondence New York Sun.

To-day the streets of this town have been well filled. The country people have been here in force. Noticeable among the crowds of blacks and whites were the sand-hillers.

The sand-hillers are a race of whites who live among the sand-hills of South Carolina. They seem a distinct type. From whom they descended no one knows. Morally they are wrecks beyond redemption. They are miserably poor. They are despised by whites and blacks alike. They have no ambition, no hope, no thought of a higher life. No effort has ever been made to elevate these degraded people. The treatment they receive shows plainly the utter indifference of the Southern gentleman to the welfare of all whom he thinks are below him socially.

Before the war these poor whites were treated worse than slaves. They had the ballot, and when election day drew near the South Carolina gentlemen used to herd them in corrals, called bull pens here, and, supplying them with whisky, kept them drunk until they were ready to have them cast their votes. Incredible as this story sounds, it has been told to me by so many persons that I believe it to be true.

A sand-hiller is a raw-boned, gaunt, cadaverous man. He is put together loosely. He shambles in his gait. He is humble in spirit, and looks downward as though searching for lost coin. There is a peculiar side glance from the corners of his eyes, a furtive, timid, abashed glance that thoroughly expresses the craven spirit of the creature. His wife is generally a depressed-looking female much given to pipe-smoking, tobacco-chewing, and occasionally to the pleasure of clay-eating. His children are simply young san-dhillers. Some of them, of tender years, are slaves to the clay habit. These people live in squalid hovels hidden from the sight of passing travelers by trees. Many of these wretched dwellings stand in ravines where there is a little level land fit for agriculture. A few chickens stalk sadly around the yards. A pig, lean, active, straight-tailed, walks with hungry briskness about the house. The sand-hiller who does not own a dog does not live in South Carolina. They generally have more than one—mean, sneaking curs, mangy, flea-bitten, and always tired.

There has been a weak effort at agriculture around the houses of the sand-hillers. A few acres of the sandy soil have been scratched with a light plough, having a wooden mould board, and drawn by a single mule, steer or cow. A few vegetables, some corn, and occasionally a little patch of cotton, a very small patch this, as the true sand-hiller is not given to working the soil, are planted. They raise enough to feed their families, generally. If they do not, they supplement the supply by stealing, or by selling wood. They hunt, they fish, they sit in the sun. When they are tired of resting, they cut a little wood, by preference the resinous heart of the pitch pine, called light wood. It takes a long time for a sand-hiller to cut the eighth of a cord of this wood, possibly an entire week. When Saturday morning comes the torpid animal dresses himself in his best clothes, hitches his single animal to his cart, which is loaded with the wood, and slowly travels over miles of sandy roads to market. Arriving there, he sells his wood, receiving from fifty cents to a dollar and a half for the load. This money he promptly invests in whisky, which he carries home. He does not linger in town, preferring the solitude of the sand-hills, where, surrounded by his squalid family, he can quietly get drunk and thoroughly enjoy sand-hill society.

This part of South Carolina is a country of one-horse wagons. It is rare to see two horses harnessed and hitched to a farm wagon as they are in the Western agricultural States. One mule or horse hitched to a wagon or a cart is the prevailing rig. The sand-hiller has soberly burlesqued this conveyance. He, finding, or begging, or stealing, or it may be buying, though the latter is highly improbable, a pair of wheels and an axletree, builds a cart. The cart is a rough affair, pinned together with wooden pins, and impressing the Northern beholder with the belief that it will shortly fall to pieces. I have stopped on the streets several times to see these carts tumble into kindling wood, but they hung together, and creakingly rolled out of town in the direction of the sand hills. To this cart a small bull, cow or steer is hitched. Three-quarters of the sand-hillers have but a single animal, a sober, sad-faced animal that does not chew the cud of content; indeed, I have yet to see them chewing any cud, either of content or discontent. The harness used is home-made, consisting of bits of leathern straps, ropes and short chains. Many of the animals have collars made of corn husks, and are harnessed as horses are in the North and West. Others have a single yoke, such as are used on self-sucking cows in the Northern States. The cattle are well broken and remarkably docile. They stand stanchly when left on the road, or, when they are at the end of their journey, they lie down and blink kindly at the by-passers. That there is anything ludicrous in the appearance of these teams and their drivers never seems to strike the Southern men. I thought that the sight of these people and of the negroes who cultivate the "one-horse farms," on the streets might have made the dominant class thoughtful, and that the tremendous questions imperatively demanding attention arose before them. Not so. They are used to the spectacle, and carelessly damn both negroes and sand-hillers, when spoken to about them. One affluent sand-hiller, a haughty monopolist, came to town yesterday with a team that struck me as being exceedingly absurd and a measure of uncivilization. He had three animals hitched to his wagon. The nigh-wheeler was a lean mule, gray with age, and having deep pockets above his eyes. The off-wheeler was a small brindle steer, fat and saucy. Hitched to the end of the pole, and soberly pulling his share of the half cord of wood, walked a little red bull. Riding on the near-wheeler was a tall, gaunt sand-hiller. He was shaggy of hair, round-shouldered, loose-jointed, dirty, and silent. He never spoke to his team, simply jerked the rope that guided the lead animal. Going down the main street, the gray mule met another sad-faced mule, an old acquaintance, probably. She thrust out her head and brayed harshly, the little red bull bellowed rumblingly, and the brindle steer bellowed mournfully. The tall sand-hiller spoke not, neither did he smile. He soberly drove to a cotton warehouse, dismounted, and stalked off, leaving his team in the street.

One thing that impresses me deeply here is the silence of the men, both black and white. I mean the men from the country. A day in a Western town when wheat or corn is marketed is a noisy day. Men laugh; they call loudly to each other; they joke; the banks are crowded; the saloons filled to overflowing; the elevators are filled with good-natured men, and there is the loud hum of human voices everywhere; the horses are driven rapidly; the strong, heavy wagons rumble loudly. Here all is silent, all is slow. The people are sedate. There seems to be no humor among them. Gravely they sell their cotton and other farm produce. The sales over, the streets rapidly become deserted. The teams that came from a distance so great as to forbid returning that day are driven to corrals. Most of the teamsters bring fodder for their animals and blankets and food for themselves. These farmers are much more economical than Northern men. The teams are fed and watered, fires are built in the corral, and the teamsters, many of whom are small farmers, gather round the blaze and talk in low tones while they eat. I heard no song, no laughter, around these fires. The talk is earnest, and generally about crops, but frequently they talk of politics. I have yet to hear any talk among the comparatively uneducated white men about the negro question. That it is an active and probably dangerous question they do not seem to believe. At any rate, the common people of South Carolina do not discuss it.

Extraordinary Death of a Traveler.

From Colonies and India.

An extraordinary fatality has occurred in British Guiana, where an inexperienced traveler, having, as is the custom in tropical countries, taken a refreshing draught from the stem of one of the many water-holding plants which thrive in the forests, qualified his cold refreshment by a "nip" of rum. Shortly afterward he died in excruciating agony, and a post-mortem examination showed that his internal organs were literally sealed up with India rubber. He had imbibed the sap of the Mimusops balata, the juice of which coagulates and hardens in alcohol, and the rum had had its usual effect in the poor man's stomach, with necessarily fatal results.

TALES OF SPORTING.

A Whole Game-Bag Full of Hunting Yarns.

From the Bodie Free Press.

Three or four years ago the waters of Mono Lake were the stamping-ground of thousands of gulls, curlews and other water birds, who made it their home in summer and winter. These birds laid their eggs and hatched their young on the islands in the lake, and save for the occasional Indian's trip for plunder they were unmolested. But it became known that upon the islands millions of gull eggs were procurable for a small outlay of trouble and some enterprising individuals began an opposition to the outside egg-shippers. These eggs, although too strong for the average egg-eater straight, were found to possess advantages over all others in the culinary department, and the hotel and private family's cook alike took kindly to the young gulls in their native State. Bodie became a live market for the produce and prices were quoted as high as two bits a dozen. But the bottom of the egg "plant" was encountered one day and the old gull never attempted to replenish the depleted stock. As a result the slaughter of the innocent young birds has deprived Mono Lake of much life and now the number of gulls is perceptibly diminishing, the old birds having no place to deposit their eggs, and if they are not allowed to breed upon the islands again undisturbed the gull tribe in a few years at the farthest will become extinct.

ONE BUCK KILLS ANOTHER.

From the Petersburg Index-Appeal.

The particulars of a very remarkable occurrence near Brander's Bridge, in Chesterfield county, were received here yesterday. It seems that a son of Charles Harrison and another gentleman, named Baird, were out opossum hunting, some nights ago, in the vicinity of the bridge, when they heard their dogs baying in a reedy swamp close by. The gentlemen then concluded to go home and procure a gun, and on their return found that the dogs were after two large bucks, one with eight points and the other with ten points. For some cause or other the buck with the eight prongs had killed the one with ten points with one of its prongs. The prong entered near the eye and came out near the ear. By some means the prongs of each of the bucks became interlocked and had evidently been so for several days, as the dead animal had been killed long enough to become offensive. The live buck, which had evidently suffered for food, was in a very poor, emaciated condition, and was shot and killed before the marksmen could recognize what it was in the dark. The above story may seem incredible, but it is literally true and can be vouched for by a gentleman now in the city.

A STORY OF A GEORGIA DOG.

From the Bainbridge Democrat.

Bill Sellers, of the Flint River store, is the happy possessor of a fine opossum dog of the stump-tail variety. The dog cost Bill only $1, and he and Tom Williams say that one night in the woods with that dog, opossum or no opossum, will pan out more fun to the square inch than anything you ever struck. Bill's dog comes up to what Josh Billings said of the boy to be born in August: "He will have one eye on the main chance and the other on the collaterals." Which is to say that while the dog goes on an ostensible 'possum hunt he doesn't regard it as in the least beneath his dignity as a dog to take in anything that comes to hand. He trees rats and "opens out" on hoot owls with equal facility and composure. He also ran a white black-nose gray cat within two feet of Tom Williams the other night and Tom has charged upon his laundry account as follows, to wit: Two weeks' washing (of one suit), $2 50; twelve balls potash, $1; total, $3 50. Credit by one woods rat (his share), 3 cents; two gophers (caught by the dog), 15—18; net loss, $3.35. "Some folks love peas and cail, but Bill loves 'possum all but the tail."

HOW ABBOTT SHOT THE HAWK.

From the Savannah News.

A correspondent at Springfield, Effingham county, under date of the 24th of November, writes us as follows: "On the 22d inst., in the forenoon, G. W. Abbott's was the scene of a terrible accident. Mr. Abbott went into his house to get a gun to shoot a hawk, and in getting the weapon down it went off, putting the whole load in the shoulder of Tryon Elkins, an old citizen of this county. He only lived about thirty minutes. Mr. Hamilton, of this county, who was shot a few days since, is still alive, but very low. His symptons are a little better to-day."

AN ODD ADVENTURE IN MICHIGAN.

From the West Branch Herald.

A corespondent solemnly swears that W. P. Bigomey saw a deer swimming across George Lake, ran ahead to where he thought it would land, hid behind a tree, and when the deer came along stabbed and killed it with a dirk knife. The editor has now the deer's antlers; likewise the dirk-knife, as proofs of the story. The tree can also be seen by any doubter, and the lake is still there.

LANGTRY DEFENDED,

And All the Blame Laid on Her Feminine Guardian.

Letter in the New York Sun.

She could not do wrong, even if she wanted to, watched by Mrs. Labouchere, by a young sister of that woman, by Miss Pattison, by the manager, and by the hotel servants. Besides, being an indifferent actress, she had to rehearse nearly every afternoon, to perform at the theater every night, and sometimes twice a day. She had no time for anything else. Her dinners at Delmonico's did not last over an hour and a half, as she had to be at the theater at 7:30. Her supper never began unti, 11:30—and at 1 a. m. the service of the house ends for the day.

Men who associated with her as snobs simply wanted to be seen with a woman like her. They are not dangerous, for they have not pluck enough to pay court to her in earnest. Town talk is all they are after. The two Cuttings, George Gould, son of Jay, the stock broker Schenck and young Gebhardt, the rejected suitor of Miss Jerome, and Oscar Wilde, were prominent in this line.

The ground of her separation from Mrs. Labouchere is that she lost all social opportunities on her account. People would not invite Mrs. Labouchere, and that lady with intense selfishness, would not let her go alone. Besides it is a question whether Mrs. Labouchere is Mrs. Labouchere. She was married to a Mr. Pigeon, a solictor in Bristol. She was origanally Hattie Hodgson, an actress of the Haymarket Theater. She married Pigeon and is said to have never been divorced from him. But Labouchere has always introduced her as his wife. Such is her Londod record, anyway. Mrs. Langtry was smart enough to understand that in Boston Mrs. Labouchere would hurt her socially still more than in New York, and that is what's the matter.

Notwithstanding the fact that the yield of the lumber mills at Orange has been 25 per cent greater, the shipments over the railroads have been very much lighter during the past month or two than during the same period last year.

HOSTETTER'S

BITTERS

Remember that stamina, vital energy, the life-principle, or whatever you may choose to call the resistant power which battles against the causes of disease and death, is the grand safeguard of health. It is the garrison of the human fortress, and when it waxes weak the true policy is to throw in reinforcements. In other words, when such an emergency occurs, commence a course of the Bitters. For sale by Druggists and Dealers, to whom apply for our Almanac.

RUPTURE.

Since the opening of the Vienna Institute for the cure of Rupture, at 1113 Washington avenue, this city, several thousand ruptured persons applied to us for treatment, many of whom, from long-continued truss pressure, were victims of kidney diseases, bowel troubles, back-aches, fevers, and many other diseases. In many cases, such as that of Mr. Wm. Hubbard, of Hannibal, Mo., the rupture was over thirty inches in circumference. In every case complete relief was given, and the patient enabled to resume his occupation free from danger of a recurrence of the rupture, as the persons themselves, and many of our leading physicians, can testify.

Reference, in St. Louis: John Buehler, 1011 Cass avenue, ruptured 25 years; M. Kern, 2143 Vineyard street, ruptured 30 years; G. Loehr, 1516 North Market street, 15 years; Geo. Lay, Carondelet, 19 years; A. Rantkotter, 1608 Montgomery street, 6 years; J. Eyler, Carondelet, 7 years; H. Hotterman, Natural Bridge road and Papin avenue, 14 years; A. Winkler, 809 South Twenty-second street; H. Zuler, 1403 North Thirteenth street; Joseph Stark, Carlyle, Ill., 33. Physicians: Dr. J. B. Flanders, 901 Olive street; Dr. Harder, 1014 Brooklyn street; Dr. Field, Fourteenth and Lucas avenue, and many other prominent physicians.

Our treatment does not interfere with one's occupation or habits of life, and is not a surgical operation. Persons can be treated and start home same day. Dr. Smythe's book gives reliable proof of his success, testimonials of persons treated, etc., and is mailed for 10 cents.

Catarrh, Throat, Nose and Lung Disease. Liver Complaints.

It is self-evident that a physician paying particular attention to a class of cases attains great skill, and physicians in regular practice all over the country, knowing this, frequently recommend cases to this oldest office in America, where every known appliance is resorted to, and the proved good remedies of all ages and countries are used. A whole house is used for office purposes, and all are treated with skill in a respectful manner; and knowing what to do, no experiments are made. On account of the great number of cases applying, the charges are kept low, often lower than is demanded by others. If you secure the skill and get a speedy and perfect cure, that is the important matter.

CURE YOURSELF.

Bohannan's "Vegetable Curative" cures all Nervous Diseases, Mental and Physical Weakness, General Debility, Kidney Complaints, Organic Weakness, or any of the train of evils arising from Indiscretions, Over Brain Work, OR ANY OTHER CAUSE, which often terminate in Consumption or Insanity. Many men, from the effects of Youthful Imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce symptoms of nearly every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure as promptly as BOHANNAN'S VEGETABLE CURATIVE.
It has been used by old Dr. Bohannan in his private practice for over thirty years, has never failed in curing even the Worst Cases. The patient gains strength and elasticity of spirits at once, as it acts directly on the parts affected as a soothing and healing tonic and anodyne, imparting power and tone and restoring them to their natural state, the same as if never affected. The ingredients are simple productions of nature—barks, roots, herbs, etc., and are a specific for the above diseases. Permanently curing most cases in from two to seven weeks time.
☞ Price Five Dollars sent to any address. For sale only at Bohannan's Drug Store, No. 621 North Fifth Street, corner of Christy avenue, St. Louis, Mo.
☞ A Treatise fully describing the above sent FREE.

PILES CURED. "Bohannan's Pile Ointment," cures the worst cases of Piles, no matter what form or how long standing, in from 2 to 5 days. Price, One Dollar per box. Prepared by BOHANNAN & CO., Druggists, S. W. Cor. Fifth and Christy ave.

TEN YEARS.

Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:
I have delayed thus long in writing because I wanted to make "assurance doubly sure" in the trial of S. S. S. in my own case, and am happy to report that it has entirely eradicated every symptom of the disease from my system. Had followed the advice of Tom Swift it would have saved me ten years of intense suffering. I have not felt the least return of the disease, and can fully and truly recommend S. S. S. to all suffering from the scourge, and especially to the physicians in Macon, who knew my condition. When I can positively assure them that it has not only relieved me of pain, but has entirely obliterated every trace of the disease from my system, it ought to convince even them of its infallible qualities. I do not wish my name published, but you can show my letter to those who formerly knew of my condition. It is a shame human kind should suffer from the prejudice of physicians to anything not laid down in the text-books.

AMUSEMENTS.

POPE'S.

Salvini will positively appear this evening at Pope's in his famous rôle of Conrad, in "The Outlaw." It was by special desire that the great tragedian was announced to present this rôle and great interest has been manifested in the performance. The management, however, advertised in yesterday morning's papers "The Gladiator" for this evening, which naturally created the impression that the bill had been changed at the eleventh hour. It seems, however, to have been a mistake, and the public will be gratified to-night by seeing the eminent foreign actor in his grandest impersonation. "The Outlaw" has never been presented here. There will be a large and brilliant audience. Salvini will appear at the matinée to-morow, the last time, as Othello. The admission to the lower floor for this performance is placed at one dollar and the family circle fifty cents. To-morrow evening the Salvini Company, including Marie Prescott and Lewis Morrison, will present "The New Magdalen."

NOTES.

Sol Smith Russell, as Tom Dilloway in "Edgewood Folks," is doing a handsome business at the Olympic this week. He is a great favorite with St. Louis play-goers.

The Dime Museum, Fourth and Walnut streets, appears to be doing a thriving business. There is a large attendance afternoon and evening. The living curiosities are worth seeing.

The following attractions are billed for next week: Grand Opera-house, Collier's "Lights o' London;" Olympic, Barlow and Wilson's Minstrels; Pope's, Leavitt's Minstrels; People's, W. H. Fitzgerald in "The Girl that I Love." The engagements at each house commence on Sunday evening.

Ladies attending "La Belle Russe" performance at the Grand Opera-house this evening will be presented with bracelet souvenir programmes. Miss Jeffreys Lewis in the title-rôle has scored a marked success, and the new play has been most favorably received here. It ran over one hundred nights at Wallack's Theater.

The charity performances at the People's are well attended. There is an extra matinée to-day. Miss Charlotte Thompson will appear in her popular rôle of Jane Eyre for for the remainder of the week. Several thousand tickets have been distributed, the proceeds being applied by the Provident and St. Vincent de Paul Relief Societies. Tickets can be obtained of the police.

THE germs of scrofula, latent in every person, are destroyed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

SPORTING SUNDRIES.

Base Ball Conventions and Gossip—Lacrosse—Racing—General News.

The members of the National Base Ball League assembled at Providence, R. I. yesterday. The first business transacted was the adoption of an amendment rendering liable to expulsion any player under contract with League clubs who shall, without the consent of such club, agree to enter into the services of another club until after the expiration of his contract. The schepule series was chan_ed from twelve to fourteen. The rules of playing were also changed, to the effect that the pitcher's hand in delivering a ball must pass below the shoulder instead of the waist. Four League umpires, at a salary of $1,000 each, will be appointed for next season. A committee to report in March was appointed to consider the advisability of recognizing contracts with the Northwestern and other such associations. The Spalding ball was adopted for next season, and Houck, Pike, Dorgan, Nolan, Gross, Fox, Dickerson, Crowley, Brown and Caskins were restored to membership. In the evening session A. G. Mills, of Chicago, was elected president, and New York and Philadelphia were admitted in place of Troy and Worcester. A return to the old distinguishing colors in uniform was also agreed upon.

The Northwestern Base Ball League adjourned at Fort Wayne, Indiana, yesterday, to meet at Chicago the second Wednesday in January. The admission to games was fixed at twenty-five cents, thirty-five per cent of the gate receipts to be allowed to visiting clubs. The amendment against Sunday games was agreed upon, and on this account it is thought the Quincy Club will withdraw. The schedule of games will be fixed at the January meeting.
